Ford Silence on Parley Disappoints New Deal

WANTED AUTO MAGNATE TO PLEDGE HELP

Roosevelt Aids Hoped Foe Would Line Up With Other 16 'Top Notchers.'

'VERY PLEASANT,' HE SAYS

Industrialist, White House Both Decline Statements on Roosevelt 'Date.'

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Henry Ford's silence following his meeting with President Roosevelt disappointed administration officials today.

They had hoped that the millionaire industrialist and foe of New Deal policies would publicly line up with 16 business men who have pledged themselves to cooperate with the government in the fight on depression.

'Pleasant,' He Says.

Ford, however, confined his discussion of the meeting to the remark that it was "very pleasant." What he didn't say was regarded as of more significance.

In a brief interview aboard a New York-bound train following a two-hour luncheon conference with the president, Ford said that he is convinced the "country is all right and will continue to be all right."

Asked whether he came to any definite understanding with the president concerning national problems, he hastily turned the interview to other topics, saying that he did not "want to talk about that."

The White House was equally reluctant to discuss the meeting. Immediately following the conference, the president's secretary, Stephen T. Early, informed the press that there would be no statement.

Meanwhile, Securities and Exchange Commissioner John W. Hanes considered the advisability of summoning the 16 business executives who signed the pledge of

RAIN NEEDED

Farmers Hope for Showers to Give New Crops Start.

Richland county crops not yet well started, are badly in need of rain, and farmers were hoping today that the weather forecast of showers tonight would come true —with really vigorous showers.

Although April is supposed to be a rainy month, the rainfall has been below normal, and the high temperatures of the past few days —a season's record was set yesterday when the mercury went to 83 —have made fields dangerously dry, according to County Farm Agent George B. Ganyard.

The temperature stood at 77 at noon today. The forecast said that Friday would be fair but "much cooler."

SEE LAFOLLETTE HEAD NEW PARTY

Associates Believe Governor Will Bare Plans Tonight.

MADISON, Wis. —(U.P.)— Gov. Philip LaFollette of Wisconsin will announce tonight at a "bread and butter" rally of liberal supporters whether he intends to launch a new national third party movement with his Progressive party as a foundation.

His decision has been made but he has kept it a guarded secret. Associates believed, however, that a third party will be proposed, if not formally organized, and that he will direct its energies toward the 1944 presidential race, rather than that of 1940.

LaFollette's associates belived that his speech will mark a definite break with Roosevelt's administration.

2 DIE TONIGHT

Convicts, Saved Once By Chair Breakdown, Prepare for 'Walk.'

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. — (U.P.) — Two convicts saved from execution in the electric chair last Friday when a motor generator failed twice, face death again tonight unless attempts to secure reprieves for them are successful.

The men are John Vaughn, slayer of a San Antonio policeman, and Johnny Banks, negro Baptist preacher.

'Pioneers' (1938 Version) Fed Up With Trail Blazing and Modern Hardships

Sleeping on Hard Floors, Nightly Banquets No Fun for Caravan.

By JANE WILLIAMS

Pioneering in 1788 was a pretty soft snap as compared with the "hardships" endured by the trail blazers of 1938 who set out from Ipswich, Mass., last Dec. 2, and who will reach Mansfield Monday—according to the 37 college boys who are the "pioneers" of the Northwest Territory expedition.

Along the roads of Ohio, over unending ribbons of concrete that have replaced the forest trails of 150 years ago, comes the covered wagon and ox team, showing how the founders of Ohio traveled when this state was young. And with the wagon, riding sometimes past squat, belching steel mills and sometimes between rows of pink and white apple orchards and fertile fields, are the "frontiersmen," their buckskin fringes whipped by the April breeze and coonskin caps at jaunty angles.

But—the covered wagon is in a motor truck, the sleek black oxen, looking a bit blase about the whole thing, jounce along in a big van until the outskirts of towns and cities are reached, while the "frontiersmen" are frankly fed up with 1938 trail blazing.

I caught the caravan Tuesday night at the little town of Chardon in Geauga county, where the historical pageant "March of Freedom" was presented on the "village green," and followed the parade yesterday morning down Cleveland's Euclid avenue between thousands of curious onlookers who couldn't believe that life in Ohio ever had been like THAT!

While hostile Indians watched, the settlers of the Northwest territory came, in 1788, down the Ohio river to Marietta. Monday, retracing the steps of those settlers, a replica of the original caravan, will appear in Mansfield, traveling by ox-cart.

The 37 pioneers (there were 38 when the anniversary expedition started, but one of them quit the trail blazers to go into the movies), are college boys representing 23 American colleges and universities, extending geographically from Harvard to the University of Minnesota.

They are "pioneering" for their "keep,' a dollar a day, and a bonus of $100 if they stay with the expedition until next October when it disbands. The expedition was under the jurisdiction of the federal government from the time it started last December in New England until a few weeks ago when it reached Marietta, the first settlement in Ohio. From now on it will come under the state celebration commissions in each of the states it covers—Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and a part of Minnesota—and which made up the Northwest Territory when the government purchased it in 1787.

BURTON WAITS DAVEY'S REPLY

Mayor of Cleveland Demands Immediate Special Session to Ease Relief Crisis.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—Municipal officials, facing a long-threatened relief showdown, looked to Gov. Martin L. Davey today for a reply to Mayor Harold H. Burton's telegraphed demand that a call be issued immediately for a special session of the legislature.

Burton wired the governor last night that Cleveland is "out of funds for emergency food purchases" and "the need for a special session of the general assembly seems clear beyond all question."

Governor Davey at Columbus promised the request would be considered today, although he did not indicate what action he might take.

Burton urged the governor to call a special session "not later than May 2nd so as to give us some basis to meet the needs of those unable to supply food and shelter for themselves."

"It is impossible for the city to act without legislative authority," Burton wired, "but if a special session is called immediately we hope to convince food vendors that they should extend informal credit upon the probability that state action will be taken to reimburse them, although they have no legal assurance upon which to act.

"In the interest of preserving confidence in governmental agencies of the state and in the interests of 75,000 men, women and children dependent upon relief in this county, I urge your immediate announcement of the date of the special session."

JURY DEBATES

Orchestra Leader's Murder Trial Nearing Completion.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—A jury of eight men and four women, today considered the fate of John Kosinski, 32, New York orchestra leader and airplane pilot, charged with the murder of Tony Bublo, a bank guard, following a holdup here 14 years ago.

Kosinski, who leads an orchestra in New York under the name of Fred Guss, said he left for New York five months before the murder.

Cash awards and loving cups will be presented in addition to diplomas, certificates and movie test.

In order to give all entrants an equal opportunity, there will be various age divisions and a num-

PROSPECTS DIM

Columbus Sees Kennedy Stay Out of Governor's Race.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Prospects that Secretary of State William J. Kennedy might seek the Democratic nomination for governor appeared today to have been dimmed by developments.

These developments, a well-informed Democratic leader said, were:

Hesitancy of Burr Gongwer, head of the Cuyahoga county Democratic machine, to throw the support of his organization behind Kennedy, and refusal of John Owens to give Kennedy the backing of the Committee for Industrial Organization in Ohio.

Owens was reported to have told Kennedy that the CIO was inclined to favor Charles Sawyer, who with Gov. Martin L. Davey already is campaigning for the nomination for governor.

COUNCIL GROUP TO 'GO TO BAT' ON GAS RATES

Utilities Committee, Armed With Data on Other Cities, Plan Session Tomorrow.

PREDICTS NO HIGHER RATE

Chairman Says No Word Has Been Heard From Utility; Contract Ends in May.

Armed with information on rates paid by other Ohio cities, council's utilities committee today prepared to go into session, probably tomorrow, to see what can be done about a new gas rate for the city of Mansfield.

And as he announced plans for convening the committee he heads, Chairman Russell D. Porch, said "Personally, I will not vote for a rate higher than we are now paying, and I don't think any other member of council will." He added that he favored a short-term contract.

Declines to Predict Action.

Porch, however, declined to predict that the committee would recommend renewal of the rates contained in the present contract, which expires next month.

It sets a monthly rate, for the domestic consumer, of $1 for the first 500 feet and 50 cents per thousand for all over that amount. Under this contract, the consumer using 5,000 feet per month pays 65 cents a thousand, the 6,000 foot user pays a rate of 62⅓ cents a thousand and the 10,000-foot user pays a rate of 57½ cents.

Porch said the committee had not conferred with officials of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, but said he expected that to come after his committee had submitted its recommendations to council. The other members of the committee and Lester D. Hunt and Arthur L. Croak.

Favors Quality Guarantee.

The committee chairman said he felt that the new ordinance should contain some guarantee from the company as to the standard of quality of the gas supplied to the city. He said he expected to propose that the contract specify the number of B.T.U.'s (heat units) per thousand feet, but had not decided what minimum he would suggest.

SET FUND PLANS

Divisional Leaders for Campaign to Be Named Friday.

Final plans for the 1938 Community Fund campaign which will be held next month, will be announced tomorrow after a noon meeting of the campaign committee and working committees at the Evergreens cafeteria.

Arthur Hughes, campaign chairman, who called the meeting, said the divisional majors will be announced at the meeting, as well as plans for the opening dinner.

The campaign opens May 9 and continues through the 21st, although all but the "clean-up" work will be completed the first week, according to Hughes.

The campaign quota this year is $53,950 with 10 agencies participating.

Sees President, But Won't Talk

Henry Ford, the automobile magnate, is pictured walking up the steps of the White House in Washington for a luncheon engagement with the president. Ford, his son, Edsel, W. J. Cameron, a Ford company official, and Marriner Eccles, governor of the federal reserve board, discussed the general economic ills with the president. It was Ford's first visit to the White House since Roosevelt became president, but the auto magnate wouldn't say what he and Mr. Roosevelt talked about. "It was very pleasant," was his only comment.

Ford Says Texan Would Make a 'Mighty Fine' One After White House Talk.

(By International News Service)

BOSTON — Henry Ford, in a copyrighted interview published today in the Boston Evening American, names Vice President John Nance Garner as his choice for president in 1940.

Ford was interviewed by John Bradford Main, Boston reporter, just prior to his visit to President Roosevelt. He declared he was a Republican, but when the reporter asked his choice for the next president, Ford replied:

"Why a Republican? You've got a good man—a mighty good man—in Washington right now! Jack Garner!

"Jack Garner would make a mighty fine president. He's got a mighty fine record. He's on the spot. He knows what's going on. He's got the experience.

"I don't say Jack Garner will

It will be in a superior courtroom, where she will appear as complaining witness against Sandra Martin, 32, her former secretary, charged with misappropriating approximately $25,000 of the star's funds. Miss Martin is to be arraigned on ten charges of forgery and ten charges of grand theft.

Jail Youth 20 Minutes After $277 Akron Holdup.

AKRON — (INS) — Arrested 20 minutes after a finance company holdup, a man giving his name as Benford Combs, 25, of Ashland, O., was held on robbery charges today.

Combs was apprehended by Sergt. Robert Miller, who was receiving a description over the telephone in a downtown hotel when he saw a man at the desk who answered the description and stepped from the phone booth to make the arrest.

Combs, police said, admitted the hold-up when Miller took him to his hotel room and identified the suit worn in the robbery.

The loot, $277, was taken at the point of a gun from Mrs. R. L. Burroughs, a clerk.

Nora pulled the trigger. The hammer snapped but there was no report. She pulled it again and a bullet tore through Mary Agnes' cheek, knocked out several teeth and came out the other cheek. Her condition was good in a hospital today.

ACTS TO FORCE 7 TO TESTIFY ON '5 PER CENT'

Civil Service Workers Refuse to Be Quizzed on Davey Solicitation Charges.

CHANGE THEIR MINDS

Tax Employes, Once Ready to Be Questioned, Say They're 'Not Interested.'

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy summoned a special grand jury today to investigate political campaign fund solicitations from state civil service employes after seven workers refused to answer questions of Duffy's assistants.

A Franklin county grand jury which investigated the parole system earlier this year was ordered by Duffy to reconvene Monday morning to force testimony from balking witnesses.

Refuse Interviews.

Seven sales tax division employes declined to be interviewed by an assistant attorney general soon after Duffy threw his entire office staff into the investigation of reports that Gov. Martin L. Davey's campaign managers were "assessing" civil service employes 5 per cent of their annual salaries.

Albert Frazier, an attorney general's investigator, asked the seven persons, two men and five women, to appear at Duffy's office for questioning and, he said, they agreed.

J. E. Williams, jr., chief of the sales tax division, later telephoned Will P. Stephenson, assistant attorney general directing the inquiry; and informed him the seven were "not interested" in appearing.

Stephenson asked Williams whether the seven employes wished to appear voluntarily or under a grand jury subpoena. The sales tax chief again interviewed the seven and told Stephenson they preferred a grand jury summons.

'Special' Testimony.

Employes who refused to appear were John W. King of Columbus and Ed Cole of Willoughby, examiners, Florence Prescott, Elizabeth Pugh, Esther Bayer, Anne Reihl and Mrs. Elizabeth Nigh, stenographers and clerks.

Stephenson said he wanted particularly their testimony for "well founded reasons" which he declined to disclose.

All other work of the attorney general's office was suspended as Duffy assigned 24 assistants to 12 state departments for an intensive

Mr. Public Worker, Want A Portrait? WPA'll Do It Free

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The Works Progress Administration offered immortality on canvas today to all public officials whom it deems "worthy" of preservation for posterity.

Any public official can have his portrait painted by the WPA federal art project if he can prove his worthiness. If the WPA finds his proof convincing it will send an artists to do an oil painting of him.

More than 200 officials already have had their wish to see their portrait displayed on the walls of a public building gratified by the WPA. Several hundred others have sent in applications.

A politician, if he be worthy, no longer need fear that the memory of his work will end with his term of office. The WPA will furnish the artist without cost and see that his portrait is hung in an appropriate public place.

The bars are removed when it comes to rank or party affiliation. Officials said there was "no significance" to a predominance of Democratic portraits. A school janitor may be just as eligible as the mayor of a city or a congressman.

AUTOMATIC NOW

Mrs. Hahn To Go To Death In 'Modernized' Electric Chair.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— As attorneys for Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn, condemned Cincinnati poison slayer, contemplated additional legal steps to save her from the electric chair, penitentiary officials today disclosed that if she goes to the chair May 4 hers will be the first "automatic" electrocution in the prison.

Warden James C. Woodard said that new electrical switches have been installed to replace the old switches that required an executioner to turn them on and off.

Miami Zoo Cages YOU, Monkeys Run Wild

INSIDE LOOKING OUT.
In this "zoo" near Miami, the monkeys run free while spectators are in cages. The lure of food keeps the monkeys from running away.

(By Associated Press)

MIAMI, Fla.—There is an odd zoo here where the usual status of man and animal is reversed.

In it, monkeys—dozens of them—swing through the trees. But human beings who come to watch them are caged in.

The idea of confining spectators came from necessity, says Mrs. Joseph DuMond, an attractive brunette, who runs the strange zoo with her husband.

"We started the monkey jungle originally to study the life and habits of the breed known as the Java monkey," she explained. "It was to be a scientific hobby while my husband worked at his regular trade as a commercial artist.

"We acquired this 10-acre "jungle" and released six of the species. Word got around, and so many visitors come that the avocation soon occupied all our time. People did such foolish things, for they wouldn't believe the monkeys were really more wild. We were fearful the whole tribe would gang up on somebody. So we determined to leave the monkeys free and cage in the spectators.

Now the Simians swarm through the trees, chattering gleefully at the human beings fenced in beneath them, or race

ROAD PROGRAM GIVEN IMPETUS BY ALLOCATION

County and Municipalities to Split $59,000 in Auto License Fees.

Handicapped this spring because of lack of funds, Richland county's road program was given new impetus today with the receipt of $59,904 in motor vehicle license fees from the state.

It was the first of three or four allocations of license and registration fees which are expected to bring nearly $200,000 to the county in 1938.

Of the total initial allocation, $44,354 will remain in the county road fund, $12,500 will go to the city of Mansfield for streets and $1,750 will be distributed to Shelby.

6 Villages Get $1,300.

The six incorporated villages in the county will get $1,300, with Bellville receiving $375, the largest amount. Village allocations, based on motor registration, include Plymouth, $300; Butler and Lexington, $175 each; Lucas, $150; Shiloh, $125.

The state-wide distribution amounted to $6,010,776, State Treasurer Joseph T. Ferguson said. He estimated license collections this year would amount to nearly $26,000,000, a slight increase over 1937.

Distributions to other counties in northcentral Ohio included:

Ashland, $27,864; Crawford, $29,376; Huron, $34,632; Knox, $28,944; and Marion, $36,864.

SPONSORS DRIVE

Junior Association Seeking Books for Friendly House.

Plans for another drive to obtain books for educational work at the Friendly House were announced today by officers of the Junior Association of Commerce which sponsored a similar campaign last year.

A committee headed by Robert Kuhn will be in charge of the drive and Kuhn today urged Mansfielders who have books or Magazines to contribute to telephone the Friendly House, giving their names and addresses.

Representatives of the Junior Association of Commerce will call for the books Saturday, May 7, or May 14.

Books worn or damaged are acceptable, since they can be repaired at the Friendly House, it was pointed out. The only requirement is that they be of educational value, Kuhn said.

It's Odd

But It's Science.

NEW YORK—(AP)—There is a map of America of 500,000,000 years ago, including territory that is now the United States, in Van Nostrand's new Scientific Encyclopedia.

The map only shows fragments of what was here that long ago. The remains are black spots. From Minnesota to Ohio, for example, just south of the Great Lakes, is one of the largest black spots.

The map represents well-exposed Cambrain formations. Cambrian is the geological name of the earth's crust 500,000,000 years ago. All the earth has been covered since then miles deep with other deposits of earth.

In some places these top deposits have eroded off and that is what the Cambrian map of America shows. In North America all the large Cambrian areas are in the eastern half of the country.

In the Rockies, there are several scores of Cambrian black spots, but all are small. This probably is due to the fact that the Rockies are new mountains, on the geological scale.

The encyclopedia has 1,200 articles, from "AA," a rough lava, to "Zygote," which is what every human was in the beginning, a union of two sex cells.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Kentucky Derby May Crown a Queen for 'Sport of Kings'

Mrs. Payne Whitney won the 1931 Kentucky Derby with Twenty Grand. This year she enters Gangplank, Redbreast.

By ALEX McNEILL

LOUISVILLE—(AP)—Will a woman be crowned queen of the "sport of kings" at Churchill Downs when the winner of the Kentucky Derby is acclaimed?

Only five times in the 63 years of this classic of the American turf has a woman-owned horse flashed under the wire the winner Yet today horses owned by 16 women are eligible for the blue ribbon event, May 7.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Chicago, owner of the Milky Way farms, at present seems to have the best chance of capturing the mile-and-a quarter $50,000-added race with Mountain Ridge and Tiger. Both had outstanding records as two-year-olds.

Offers Traffic Light.

Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan, whose Cavalcade won the Derby in 1934,, is back again this year with Traffic Light, a chestnut colt by Clock Tower out of Footprint.

Another former winner, Mrs. Payne Whitney, hopes to repeat with Gangplank, Perfect Peace or Redbreast. Her Twenty Grand set the Derby speed record of 2:01 4-5 in 1931.

The first woman to win was Mrs. Lasca Durell, with Elwood in 1904. It was 1924 before another woman, Mrs. Robert M. Hoots, won with Black Gold. Mrs. John D. Hertz made it a woman's year again in 1928 with Reigh Count.

Hopeful Ladies.

Other derby nominees of women owners include Mrs. W. W. Adams' Warlaine, Jean Chatburn's Honey Car, Mrs. Parker Corning's Thanksgiving, Mrs. Val Crane's Cauteleaux, Mrs. Emil Denemark's Blind Eagle, Mrs. John Durant's Red Jack, Mrs. E. G. Lewis' Great Union, Mrs. Thelma Ott's Employer, Mrs. George B. Cox's Congressman, Mrs. K. Ramsey's Feng, Mrs. C. Bacharach's Pin Money, Mrs F. J. Navin's Last Message and Mrs E E. Voynow's Rommy.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars has entered Tiger and Mountain Ridge. As two-year-olds, both were outstanding racers.

Hi-Speed Club Opens Sunday

Merchants Share Field With Oils at League Park.

The Mansfield Hi-Speed baseball club was busy today applying the finishing touches to its batting attack as it prepared for the invasion of the touted Sandusky Amburns at League park Sunday in the city's first doubleheader of the year.

Sandusky, which last season was known as the Eagles, descends on the city Sunday to tackle the Mansfield Merchants and the Hi-Speeds. The Merchants face Sandusky in the first game at 1.30 p. m.

The Hi-Speeds, who recently added Bob DeHaven, former Miami university star and coach at John Simpson junior high, to the lineup, have been holding daily practices and are expected to be in top shape for the game

Petey Beer, outstanding Mansfield hurler, will probably be on the mound for the Hi-Speeds, it was announced today. The club will also have Lefty Deeds available for duty.

Sandusky will come here with a strong lineup sprinkled with high school and college players.

Invade Erie, Pa.

Red Streaks to Pit Skill Against Strong Vincent Friday Afternoon.

BEFORE the day's activities get under way in the city tomorrow, Coach Harry Mehock and a track and field squad numbering 30 athletes will shove off for Erie, Pa.

There later in the day the Mansfield high school thin-clads will engage the Strong Vincent high school tracksters in a dual meet.

The long journey may take a lot out of the Red Streaks for the trackfest, but, nevertheless, Coach Mehock expects his athletes to make a fair showing, even though he admitted they might take it on the chin.

Mansfield's chief contenders for points tomorrow are John Linta, Dick McMullen, Jim Logan and Rich Nagle.

Linta is almost a sure bet to take the honors in the pole vault. Fresh from a successful defense of his Mansfield Relays title, the Mansfield Red Streak junior is not expected to be offered a great deal of trouble by the Strong Vincent vaulters.

McMullen, judging from his Relays appearance, should be able to add some points in the 440-yard run.

J. A. C. Can Take Bow For Fine Promotion

Sponsors Most Successful Boxing Tourney Ever Held for Fighters of This District.

BY OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

STEP UP, Francis R. O'Brien, James H. Hoffman, Harold D. Burns, Robert Walters and other Junior Association of Commerce members, and take a bow.

The elegant job they did in promoting the A. A U. mitt slam-jamboree for this district's amateurs deserves a nice slap on the back.

Amateur tournaments have been staged in this city for several springs, but none was quite as successful from artistic and financial standpoints as the recent J. A. C. promotion.

Whenever it is necessary to turn the customers away from the door as it was on the night of the finals, it is pretty definite that something out of the ordinary is being put on for the folk.

The action in all three nights of the elimination was magnificent, and fight addicts in this man's town will certainly look forward to the next promotion of the Junior Association of Commerce.

THE ASSOCIATION should also be commented for making an attempt to interest Mayor Claude M Hunter in the appointment of a boxing commission.

While commissions of this type usually hold little authority over promotions staged under the supervision of the A. A. U., it would at least protect the public against some of the smelly professional shows that Mansfield has been forced to endure

And the authority of a boxing board could also apply to amateur shows and wrestling, too, if such power was included in an ordinance.

Right now Hunter has no authority to appoint a boxing board as there is no ordinance in the city permitting the sport, but there probably will be one if the association continues the fight it has inaugurated.

NAME STAGEHAND

NEW YORK—(AP)—By the narrow majority of two votes, a jury of 12 of the country's foremost jockeys today named Maxwell Howard's Stagehand as the probable winner of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs May 7.

Stock, Hilborn Burn Up Wood, Hang Up 680's

Oldsmobiles Pole Out 1120 Game, 3036 Total.

Heavy scoring was the rule rather than the exception in the City league at the Meder alleys last night.

Heading the scores was a brilliant 685 total rapped out by Leland Stock of the Lumbermens Mutuals. Stock reached this figure with a beautiful last game of 277.

Three Pins Behind.

Three pins behind was Art Hilborn of the Miller Oldsmobiles, who blasted the sticks for a 682 count, including an opening game of 247.

Sonny Meder and Earl Robertson contributed first games of 246 to enable the Oldsmobiles to start out with a big 1120, which enabled them to compile a 3036 total The count was good for two wins over the Mutuals, who chopped down 2936.

The opening 246 tilt set the stage for Meder's 664, while Robertson followed with a 611.

Bill Donnellan also uncovered a 246 as he toppled 638 pins to pace the Roma Lunches to a pair of victories over the Meder Recreation entry. Henry Michaels slapped out a 634 for the Lunches, while Jimmy Smith poled out a 644 total for the Medermen.

Lead Liederkranz.

Featuring a middle tilt of 243, Duke Weber rolled a 658 and Nick Schmidt contributed a 618 as the Liederkranz club, although outscored 2821 to 2812, annexed two wins at the expense of the second place Metcalf Pure Oils.

DEAN DETTON WINS

LOS ANGELES—Dean Detton, 210, Salt Lake City defeated Sandor Szabo, 215, Hungary, two of three falls

No, Fall's Not Here, But Tyger Gridders Will Perform Friday

DON'T become confused if you happen to hear the dull thud of a football resounding in the neighborhood of Empire field Friday afternoon.

Your ears will not be betraying you. A football game is on schedule out there Friday, but the fall season is not here yet.

All of the football confusion at the West Fourth street field will develop from the annual tussle between candidates for next fall's Mansfield high school eleven and the 1937 team.

This game is the feature of the annual spring drills, and while the result will not be important, it will give Coach Russ Murphy a pretty definite idea of the caliber of the material he will have available for next season.

The inexperienced group of gridsters Murphy will use against the stars of last year have shown considerable promise in workouts this spring.

However, as few have had game experience, Murphy is not expecting the 1938 candidates to be impressive enough to upset the great 1937 team.

But Murphy believes the experience they will gain in this game will give them a fair idea of what they can expect next fall when they are called upon to meet such formidable foes as Massillon, Canton McKinley, and Sandusky.

Not all of next fall's gridmen will be in the lineup Friday as a number will be performing with Coach Harry Mehock's track team in Erie, Pa., but enough will be on hand to give the fans an idea of what to expect when the curtain goes up next fall.

Among the more prominent candidates who will see service in the game are Russell, Horvath, Goettle, Laughlin, Guegold, Murray, Sauder, White, Schwaner, M. Smith, Smollen, Swoyer, Bush, Grabosky, and Crawford.

In the lineup of the 1937 team will include Hallabrin, 1937 captain; Stehle, Majoy, Horvath, Deems, Heiser, Rupp, Zeigler, and Ballet.

The game is open to the public and will get under way at 3:15 p. m.

City Champs Return Intact

Mohican Chevrolets Open Season Sunday, May 15.

The Mohican Chevrolets, city sandlot champions, will return to competition again this year.

Announcement was made today of plans to place virtually the same team that represented the auto agency in 1937 on the diamond this season.

Bob Martin, widely known in sandlot baseball circles, will manage the team, which is tentatively scheduled to open the season Sunday, May 15

According to present plans, the Chevrolets will share the Fairground park with the American Legion teams.

Howard Straub, who handled the club for two years, will not be connected with the team this year as he will be unable to give it the time that he did in the past, it was announced.

In addition to managing the team, Martin will handle the business end of the club. Teams wishing games may address him at 182 West First street.

The Mohicans will hold their first practice session of the season at the Fairground at 5.30 p. m Thursday.

Durant Drills Junior Team

Builds Strong Lineup for Legion Play.

A pretty strong American Legion junior team is being rounded into shape by Manager Dewey Durant.

Several drills have already been held, and Durant has a definite line on a number of the performers he expects to use in competition this year.

Pitchers now being worked by Durant include John Oswalt, Russell Sheriff, Glenn Ulich, Robert Winbigler, Jack Slaybaugh, and Kenneth Rudolph. Ed Eisle and Gene Litchenberger are the leading catching prospects.

The first base candidates are Gene Rudolph, Bud Maul, Dick Burkholder, Chuck Atton and Bill Dusty. Battling for second base are Cortez Shephard, Pete Martz, Gale Lentz, Richard Henry and Don Smoke. Duke Weber and Myron Miller are third base prospects.

Joseph Marfia, Arvene Wagner and Fred Crawford and Ralph Hazlett are the shortstop candidates. Durant's outfielders include Lawrence Frouks, Robert Burns and Gene Emmer.

Durant announced that the schedule will get under way within a few weeks.

Allen Gets Nod Against Brownies

Indians' Lead Shaved to Half Game as Lee, Sox Hang Up 6 to 3 Victory.

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—Johnny Allen, the leading hurler of the Cleveland pitching staff a year ago, was to go after his second victory of the season here today when he faced the St. Louis Browns in the opening game of the Indians' final road series.

The Browns beat Allen on the opening day in Cleveland. The big right-hander then came back to down Detroit and even his record for the season. Vito Tamulis was to oppose him.

Must Take Series.

The Indians face the necessity of taking the series from the Browns to assure themselves of first place. Cleveland had its hold on the lead shaved to one-half a game yesterday when it was beaten 6 to 3 by the Chicago White Sox as Washington won again.

Thornton Lee, once a Cleveland hurler, was sent against his old teammates by Manager Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox and he came through with a fine seven-hit performance.

Lee kept the Indian hits well scattered and only once was the Tribe able to bunch two safeties in an inning. Lee was extremely wild, walking five men and hitting two others, but Cleveland was not able to reach him for hits when they meant runs. The Indians had 10 runners stranded on base.

The veteran Mel Harder was in the box for Cleveland. He had two bad innings and those cost him victory. The White Sox took an early lead by scoring twice in the first inning and then were blanked until the seventh when they pushed across four more runs.

Home Run Counts.

The big seventh inning rally was started after two men had been retired. The telling blows of the round were a triple by Mike Kreevich and a home run by Henry Steinbacher.

The only bright note in the Indians' weak attack was Hal Trosky's third home run of the year in the second inning with no one on.

Giants' New Strategy Wins Double-Header From Phillies

By GAYLE TALBOT, Associated Press Sports Writer.

THE BIGGEST change of the baseball season has come over Manager Bill Terry, whose New York Giants were in a dead heat with Pittsburgh today for the leadership of the National league, with eight wins and a single loss.

Bill is doing his coaching now from third base and he's spending practically all his time signalling his men to hit the ball. In past seasons Bill's idea of offensive strategy was to draw a walk, then sacrifice and then score, if possible, on a two-base error.

Not Bad Strategy.

It must not have been bad strategy, as witness the Giants' record of three pennants in five years under the old colonel. But now Bill has his boys swinging from their shoe-tops. They have hit 13 home runs and are overwhelming the eastern half of their opposition.

Terry considers his present Giant team the best he has managed, even with his regular second baseman, Burgess Whitehead, back in the hospital for perhaps a month as an aftermath of an appendectomy.

In swamping the Phillies twice yesterday, 7 to 3 and 11 to 6, the Polo Grounders pummelled a total of 27 hits, and Terry didn't signal for a bunt all afternoon. In the seventh inning of the second game they put over six runs on five solid smacks, including home runs by Hank Leiber and Joe Moore.

Pittsburgh prevented the Giants from taking full possession of the lead by defeating the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 5. Arky Vaughan, slugging Pirate shortstop, supplied the winning margin when he hit the jackpot in the seventh inning—a home run with the bases loaded.

The Brooklyns snapped a four-game losing streak by belting four Boston Bee twirlers for 17 hits and a 13 to 2 victory. Freddie Fitzsimmons of the winners allowed one hit for the first six innings.

Lon Warneke brought the St. Louis Cardinals out of their prolonged slump with a 5 to 0 shutout of Cincinnati, in which he gave up only three hits. Mickey Owen, Card catcher, smote three doubles.

The Yankees finally won two in a row at the expense of Philadelphia 9 to 2, and their 16 hits would indicate that the champions are at last finding the range. Red Ruffing stopped the A's cold after the second inning, when the rookie Dario Lodigiani hit a homer with one on.

Senators Move Up.

Jimmy Deshong pitched the surprising Washington Senators into second place with a 5 to 2 performance over Boston. The veteran Ossie Bluege knocked in two of the winners' runs with a double and single.

The St. Louis Browns gave Detroit a 7 to 2 beating. Buck Newsom hurled his third complete game and his third straight victory and set the Tigers down with four safeties. George McQuinn, St. Louis first sacker, hit a home run with one aboard.

THEATER

IN THESE days when so many Hollywood stars are badgered by relative troubles, Mickey Rooney's father, Joe Yule, is an unsung hero. He works backstage at a downtown Hollywood theater, never bothers the family and makes no effort to cash in on Mickey's fame of pay check. . . . By strenuous dieting, Jack Oakie has lost 30 pounds and hopes to double that before he is through. . . . "Suez," 20th Century-Fox' drama of the famed canal's construction, will have Tyrone Power in the leading role. . . . . Sonja Henie is scheduled to start work soon in "They Met In College."

Authentic Air Film.

"Test Pilot," the screen fare at the Ohio through Friday, is acclaimed by aviation experts as one of the most authentic aviation stories ever filmed. The picture, with Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy and Lionel Barrymore in the leading roles, is a story steeped in colorful traditions of the men who are building the future of aviation, test pilots who try out new ships before they are approved. Thrilling flying sequences, filmed with nine ground and nine aerial cameras, provide the background for a new type triangle. Gable, in the title role, is divided between his love for Miss Loy and his love for flying. The conflict between his wife and his job is the basis of the interesting plot.

McLaglen and Donlevy.

Victor McLaglen, who became famous as Edmond Lowe's policeman buddy in other years, teams up with a new partner in "Battle of Broadway," opening at the Madison theater today. McLaglen and Brian Donlevy head the cast as buddies who attend the national legion convention. Everything goes along smooth until the two meet Louise Hovick, a Broadway actress. Then the story leads them through a series of complications as each try to win the girl's hand. Finally a wealthy manufacturer steps into the picture to lead the two a wild chase. Supporting the three are Raymund Walburn, Jane Darwell and Robert Kellard.

"Burning Gold."

The oil fields of the west provide the settings for many of the scenes in "Burning Gold," opening at the Majestic theater Friday. Bill Boyd and Judith Allen head the cast of the film which center around the adventures of an oil digger. Boyd finds himself a millionaire as the result of a gusher he hit. He and his wife (Miss Allen) leave for a vacation in a big city where Boyd goes on a spending spree. Then word reaches them that the oil well is on fire. The No. 2 feature on the twin bill will be "International Crime," with Rod La Rocque, Astrid Allwyn and Thomas Jackson. The current pictures through today are "Old Hutch," starring Wallace Beery and "Woman Against the World."

"One Mile From Heaven."

Drama that blasts the front pages wide open with its sensational story of a girl who tracked down the story of the year is brought to the screen of the Ritz theater Friday in "One Mile From Heaven," with Claire Trevor, Sally Blane and Douglas Fowley in the top roles. In the girl reporter rests the happiness of three people while the front pages of her paper are held open for the story that will ruin them. How she straightens things out make an interesting story. Bob Steele in "Arizona Gunfighter," a western, completes the double feature program. "Topper," with Constance Bennett and Cary Grant, and "Back in Circulation," play through Thursday.

MORE FUN THAN A BARREL OF MONKEYS—

LEISYS Label Grams ARE HERE!

To a grand beer, we now add a grand game! On every Leisy's label, you'll find a perforated strip. Tear back the top half and there's an interesting question. And, under the bottom half, there's your answer.

Everyone goes for LabelGrams! It's the best parlor game since Monopoly hit town! It's loads of fun around the lunch table! It's the extra treat that comes with every bottle of Good Old Leisy's.

And what a treat, that slowly brewed, gently aged Leisy's, the beer that brings back memories of the good old days. Leisy's is made to an age-old formula, brewed from prize-crop malt and hops and rice, watched over by brewmasters who learned their art long before home-brew days. It's real old-fashioned beer.

So . . . when you gather with friends at your favorite restaurant or tavern, order Leisy's. Have a case sent home for the week-end, too. And, by all means, play LabelGrams soon! It's more fun than a barrel of monkeys!

AWAIT RESULTS OF EFFORT TO PUSH RECOVERY

Traders Show Little Interest as List Shows Feeble Forward Tendencies.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—(AP)—Stocks generally dragged along at lower levels in today's market, although few really weak spots were in evidence during early proceedings.

The list exhibited feeble forward tendencies at the opening, but quickly lost vigor and declines of fractions to around a point predominated near the second hour.

Traders seemed willing to wait for concrete results of the administration's efforts to stimulate recovery through a revival of business co-operation. Bonds and commodities were uneven.

Summarizing first quarter company statements, it was noted operations for most food, tobacco and brewing industries were higher than a year earlier, although activities in these lines slackened appreciably in March.

In the durable goods field it was reported farm implement, adding machine, aircraft, shipbuilding and jewelry distribution continued to make the best showing.

Those watching department store trends for market clues were heartened somewhat by estimates that, while inventories rose during March because of the approach of Easter, the increase was less than seasonal proportions.

There's Money To Be Made In Mansfield Real Estate This Summer

Don't think for a minute that all the money has been made from Mansfield Real Estate that will be made.

Far from it! Fortunes will be accumulated in the years to come by those why buy wisely now.

You can buy Mansfield real estate now, at prices that will make the investment profitable, either through the advantage of acquiring your own home on most favorable terms, or investing for income or future sale.

Many houses may be purchased and, by a wise expenditure for reconditioning, can be made to produce an increased rental or selling value.

It should also be remembered by those moving into new homes that the prices on new furnishings are more attractive at the present than they have been for a long time, and it is only natural that a new home owner will want a certain amount of new things in that home.

SCIENCE BUILDS GIRL'S STATURE

Grows 12 Inches in 24 Months While Physicians Correct Glandular Disorder.

NEW ORLEANS —(U.P.)— Growing 12 inches in 24 months was not alone a physical miracle for Eula Hebert, of Chacahoula, La., but it opened an entirely new world for the girl, now 16.

She entered Charity hospital here two years ago, a shy, frightened little dwarf of 14, only 47½ inches tall, weighing 52 pounds and virtually a "hopeless" case of glandular disturbance. She was not as large as a healthy child half her age, because she had always been small and stopped growing altogether when 8.

The child's normal brothers and sisters towered over her, even the younger ones. Going to school with bigger youngsters terrified her, because the normal procedure of growing up presented an insuperable obstacle to Eula.

Doctors shook their heads but went to work. Since the family could not afford a private room for the child and there was no room for her at the hospital, the Associated Catholic Charities arranged to care for Eula.

She began taking injections, extracts and dosages, heavy volumes o fthem daily for her thryo-pituitary difficulty.

Almost immediately the girl began gaining height and weight. In 24 months she gained 40 pounds. Doctors believe she might exceed her present 59-inch height. But Eula already is proud that she is "taller than Helen Hayes," and her growing problems now are over.

'LEANING TOWER'

But Boston's 'Tower' Is a Moveable One.

BOSTON, Mass., —(INS)—Boston has its own "leaning tower," but modern science has discovered a means of overcoming the lean. The tower of the Old South Church rests on a moveable foundation which can be jacked up to correct a leaning tendency.

In COOLERATOR

the air conditioning chamber maintains constant cold and balanced humidity. That's why foods stay fresh longer, why there is less odors, no drying out of foods.

MR. ZERO

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH

(Copyright 1938)

CHAPTER XXIV

She came in, and the door fell to with a bang.

"You must see that it can't be Algy now!"

Mr. Brook said, "Why?" and looked at her.

"Didn't you hear what I said? Or are you all too stupid to take it in? I tell you Mr. Zero rang up—just now, just this minute, while I was up in Sylvia's room. He wanted to know about the letters. So how could he be Algy? Algy couldn't be telephoning to Sylvia—you must see that. Algy's in the house."

"Mr. Somers went out in his car about 20 minutes ago," Mr. Brook volunteered.

When Algy left Gay in the drawing-room he went straight down to the stables and got out the Bentley. His own feeling was that if he stayed in the house another minute he would find himself telling Gay just what he thought of her, or old Anstruther just what he thought of him, and he didn't want to do either. He wanted to get on a straight road and let the Bentley out.

He emerged from the lane, turned to the right, and was aware of a plodding figure ahead, a figure in a dark suit and a bowler hat. Algy recognized Sturrock, the butler. On the impulse he slowed down as he passed, opened the door on the butler's side, and said, "Like a lift, Sturrock?"

The man stood still. He had an egg-shaped face, pale and smoothly shaven. His manner was respectful as he said, "I should be very much obliged, if it wouldn't be troubling you, sir."

His voice suggested that he served a house in mourning—a rich voice, with a kind of funeral hush upon it. Algy didn't like it very much—or him. He said shortly, "No trouble at all—jump in," and shut his own door again.

At any time in the past 15 years it would have been impossible for Sturrock to jump. He climbed in at the back and closed the door noiselessly behind him. A man of weight, a man of dignity, a man who certainly would not walk for choice. Algy wondered where he was bound for, and said without turning round, "Well, where can I drop you? Colebrook?"

"If you are not going any farther, sir."

"Railing any good to you?"

"I shall be very grateful, sir. I was afraid I might have missed the bus, but I shall get one back all right. It's my half day, and there seemed no reason why I should stay in. I mentioned it to the Inspector."

"I'm afraid I didn't," said Algy.

Sturrock pursued the subject in an earnest, painstaking manner.

"The Inspector said it would be quite all right, sir. But I shall not be taking the full time. There is a bus at half past four—I thought of catching that. I shall be in the house again before five o'clock. I told the Inspector that such was my intention. I told him I shouldn't feel comfortable about being out of the house for long—not in the circumstances." William has only been there a short time, and, as I said to the Inspector, if there was to be any emergency it would be beyond him, especially after last night."

Algy was profoundly bored with Sturrock's scruples. Railing was mercifully, only four miles away. He dropped the butler in the market-place, and as he drove out of the square on the farther side, his driving-mirror showed him a blue suit and a bowler hat disappearing within the doors of the Hand and Flower. If the walls had been transparent, he would presently have seen them esconced within a telephone booth, the bowler hat pushed back, the eyes beneath its brim intent, watchful, and aware.

Algy Somers got back to Cole Lester at half past four. Mr. Paterson, Sir Francis Colesborough's solicitor, had arrived, and the business of opening the safe was going forward in the study behind closed doors. It fell therefore to Algy to receive Mr. Montagu Lushington when he arrived at about a quarter to five. He had Mr. Brewster with him, and explained that they were on their way back to town—"And I must say, Algy, that you have a singular knack of getting into the limelight. Why you had to get yourself mixed up in a murder case at this juncture! Heaven knows there's enough talk already. I'll see Brook, but things will just have to take their course. I hope Lady Colesborough won't think we're intruding. I suppose she is keeping to her room."

Algy said he didn't think Sylvia would come down. He supposed that someone would bring them some tea. They were in the drawing-room, and to the drawing-room, upon the stroke of five tea was borne processionally by Sturrock and two attendant footmen They thought the butler had cut his afternoon uncommon short.

He ventured a, "Got your bus all right, Sturrock," and received a glance of dignified rebuke and a quiet, "Yes, thank you, sir."

Neither Gay nor Sylvia appeared, but presently Colonel Anstruther and Mr. Paterson came in, from which Algy deduced that the business of clearing the safe had been despatched. If he expected any information he was disappointed.

Colonel Anstruther drank several cups of tea all scalding hot, and half emptied the sugar bowl without perceptibly sweetening his temper. Mr. Paterson, who only drank hot water and refused food rather as if he suspected it of being poisoned, was quite as uncommunicative. Algy thought he had never seen an elderly gentleman in a worse temper.

Monty discoursed upon migratory birds, a perfectly safe subject in which no one took any interest.

There was a moment when Mr. Paterson broke his ferocious silence to observe that the country was an unendurable place in winter and it passed his comprehension how any civilized man could endure it.

There was a moment when Mr. Brewster, in a desire to make harmless conversation, addressed himself with an air of diffidence to the company at large.

"It's a pity that the evenings are still so dark. If it had been lighter, I should have been so much interested in seeing the grounds. There is a famous yew hedge, is there not?

Algy gazed almost reverentially at the unconscious Cyril.

"There is certainly a yew hedge," he murmured.

THURSDAY, APRIL 28, 1938.

Before language became more complicated a "depression" or a "recession" was merely "hard times".

Interest is something that runs high when you're paying it but doesn't amount to much when you're getting it.

Experiments are now being made with an automatic control intended to prevent cars from going through red lights—next may come a gadget that will prevent an intoxicated driver from starting his car.

Surprise Awaits the 'Pioneers.'

WHEN the "pioneers" come into Richland county next Monday they may well be excused for a feeling of surprise at the changes that have come about in the one hundred and fifty years since they first landed at Marietta.

Believe it or not, what is now Richland county was at that time divided among four Indian tribes, the Wyandots (or Hurons), the Ottawas, the Delawares and the Shawanees.

The dividing line of the tribes was just north of Mansfield, with the Hurons and the Ottawas in the northern section of the county, the Delawares in the southeastern portion and the Shawanees in the southwestern part.

It was not until 18 years later that James Hedges came here as a government surveyor, under direction of Col. Jared Mansfield, then surveyor general of the United States, and shortly afterward induced his friend Jacob Newman to build the first cabin in this township.

It was Mr. Hedges and Mr. Newman, by the way, who decided on "Mansfield" as the name of this city, in honor of the surveyor general.

Before the war of 1812 not more than eight or ten families had come to Mansfield and it was at about that time that the old blockhouse, now reconstructed in South park, was erected in Central park to protect the settlers against Indian attacks. It was not until around 1812 that Indians around Mansfield showed signs of hostilities, apparently beginning to realize that what they regarded as their "rights" were being usurped by the newcomers.

An enumeration in 1828 showed a population of 270 in Mansfield—counting men, women and children.

Wisdom of its founders in choosing the site of Mansfield has been vindicated by later progress—even the names chosen for city and county are appropriate, a man's field of opportunity, surrounded by rich land.

The early-comers did well by us—we should do as much for those who will be coming along through the next hundred and fifty years.

Student Drivers Win Awards.

THE INVESTIGATOR for Indiana's automobile license bureau reports that highest awards for skill among drivers in that state go to those of school age and to those with partial physical disability. He thinks these two groups make particularly good drivers because the former have been required to attend driving schools and the latter, recognizing that their licenses depend on their good records, are always alert and careful.

It is possible, too, that young drivers are good because of their youth. Their reflexes are prompt. They have grown up in a machine age and know cars as earlier generations knew horses.

Such an explanation does not include the irresponsible youth whose daring and lack of judgment lead him to do crazy things with a car he could otherwise handle skilfully. But, as one observer points out, there are irresponsible people at all ages. These do not win safety awards, no matter how old or how young they are.

Those Who Trespass and Destroy.

AN OCCURRENCE to which Calvin A. Byers made reference in yesterday's installment of "A Farmer's Diary" deserves more than passing attention.

The writer told of witnessing the butchery of dogwood trees and the mangling of wild flowers by a group of presumably intelligent persons who invaded privately-owned woods to wreck the beauty intended by Nature for all who chanced to pass.

In the criminal ignorance evidenced by such acts of trespass and destruction, which are not uncommon during the spring season, there is at least a hint of the great need of better training in homes and schools—so that an increasing percentage of people will learn the rules of decent behavior and proper respect for the rights of others.

Whatever may be the "standing" of such culprits in their own estimation, their ruthless destruction of beautiful growing things which are not theirs and which they had no part in creating, indicates either such gross ignorance or inexcusable thoughtlessness as to constitute a definite community liability.

If, by any chance, you missed reading "A Farmer's Diary" in yesterday's News-Journal turn to it now—it will give you a vivid picture of those who go out into the woods to pilfer, rather than to admire the beauties of springtime.

Meteoric Crash.

TODAY, thirty years after the event, scientists are studying the effects of a gigantic meteor that struck the earth in central Siberia on June 30, 1908. They have found that in a circle 25 miles in diameter trees were knocked down and all exposed parts of trunks and limbs seared. Violent air waves laid fences flat 250 miles away. At 375 miles' distance men were thrown from rafts into a river and at 435 miles horses were knocked down.

It is estimated that the meteor weighed several thousand tons, but it broke into many pieces in the air and was further shattered as it entered the frozen ground.

This, say the astronomers, is the "heaviest blow" dealt the earth in historical times." It doesn't seem to have upset the earth very much. Blows dealt civilization by economic and social evils are more serious.

School children might as well decide to prepare for some other kind of work, as the likelihood of becoming president is remote.

Hitler predicts the Nazi idea will go forward for the next thousand years—which might give him a second try at it.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

IS THE DEMOCRATIC party breaking up as the Liberal party broke up in England? Will a new independent party—such as the Labor party in England—rise to contest with the Republicans or conservative coalition by 1944?

And will Gov. Philip F. La Follette of Wisconsin be the presidential candidate of that party in 1944—and win?

The progressives are laying the groundwork. Gov. La Follette's call for a meeting of liberals in Madison, Wis., probably means a new party. But liberals expect merely groundwork till 1944.

They perhaps believe it unwise to try to take the helm in 1941—as the inflationary bubble is expected to break about that time or soon thereafter. If so, a Paul Revere will be needed in 1944—not only to save people from a new and deeper depression, but to rescue them from reaction and a possible American form of Fascism bred by that Tory reaction.

Such are the indications, if straws in the wind can be believed.

WHY GOV. PHIL?

People may question, "Why Gov. Phil? Why not Senator Robert, the elder brother? Or Mayor La Guardia of New York?"

The answer is twofold: (1) Gov. Phil is a "regular fellow," with a great many people in normally Republican midwestern states; (2) and he has put over a New Deal in Wisconsin that seems to work without friction.

Gov. Phil is more of an orator than Brother Bob—and he seems to have a slightly faster brain. He has wound a formidable opposition in Wisconsin into knots.

Senator Bob, nevertheless, is almost the ablest man in the senate today. He goes ahead like a sturdy warship. His civil liberties' investigation is a powerful factor in American industrial life. It is, in fact, historic, marking a turning point.

Senator Bob deviates for nobody from his path toward a progressive goal, toward which his father, the elder Senator Bob, looked, many years ago.

LA GUARDIA

Then, there is Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York.

La Guardia is another doer. Administering the affairs of the city of New York is a task actually second only to that of the presidency—in times like these, when more than a million persons may be unemployed and must be cared for.

La Guardia has given a business-like administration; in fact, a much more businesslike administration than has been given nationally in Washington. But, then, La Guardia has had no log-pulling congress with which to deal.

Yet La Guardia knows congress, got along well with congress when he was part of it, and an important part, too.

La Guardia is making many speeches throughout the country. He is a thorough American, a war hero, a native—yet he looks foreign. And America is no less nationalistic than other countries at the moment. There are so many of us that we do not realize we are nationalistic. Now that we all have "melted" in the melting pot, we no longer hold our arms and minds open to folk and ideas from across the sea.

But, mistake not, La Guardia is every inch an American, and knows every inch of America—and its people and their desires. He will be an important factor as early as 1940.

Historic Migration Re-Enacted

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A band of bearded "pioneers" in buckskin suits and coonskin caps is traveling the long, long trail a-winding back into America's past. It has retraced the trek of forty-eight venturesome New Englanders who set out from Massachusetts, in 1787, to "go west" for new worlds to conquer. Goal of the modern pilgrims was Marietta, Ohio, and that particular yesterday in American history when the Northwest territory got its start.

This re-enactment of a historic migration is part of a widespread celebration of the 150th anniversary of the Northwest territory, the more than a quarter-million square miles of wilderness betwen the Great Lakes, the Mississippi on the west, and the Ohio river on the south.

Changed U. S. Map Style.

"As this area was gradually digested by the young United States," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society, "it proved that the new nation had not bitten off more of the continent than it could chew. It became a symbol of national growth, a sign that the original Thirteen States could get over their 'unlucky' number and expand without losing unity.

"Did the fateful progress start when a busy and harassed congress, convening in New York, passed an ordinance on July 13, 1787, for governing the 'Territory Northwest of the Ohio?' The ordinance guaranteed religious freedom, right of trial by jury, public schools, and freedom from slavery even before a Convention, meeting quietly in Philadelphia, wrote some of those principles into a document adopted in September of the same year as the Constitution of the United States.

"Or was the foundation for success laid when General Rufus Putnam organized pioneer parties leaving Massachusetts for Ohio in December, 1787, and January, 1788? Or was the real birthday of Northwestern triumph on February 1, 1788, when Arthur St. Clair took over the Territory as its first governor? To be certain of celebrating the right anniversary, the commemorating is continuing for months, extending even into the summer of 1938 to recall that Marietta set up Ohio's first permanent local government on July 15, 1788.

"The fate of the Northwest Territory decided that the map of the United States would look more like a checkerboard than like a rainbow. Originally the area was claimed by four states, on the basis of grants from the King of England or treaties with Indians. New York claimed a small triangle at its southeastern tip, wegded in between Pennsylvania and Lake Erie. But Virginia, Connecticut and Massachusetts claimed the right of extending westward as far as possible; they might have become narrow bands of states striping the continent all the way across to the Pacific.

"Connecticut clung to 6,000 square miles, 'the Western Reserve,' until 1800. Their surrender of territory to congress for subdivision into new states changed geography as well as history.

Made Inland Port.

"Thomas Jefferson suggested carving the new country into ten states, to be served up under such foreign sounding names as Sylvania, Metropotamia, Assenisippia, and Cherronesus. Actually there emerged from the Old Northwest five full-grown states: Ohio first, then Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and finally Wisconsin in 1848. Pennsylvania built up her northwest corner from the historic Territory's open spaces, and the eastern two-thirds of Minnesota was picked up from the Northwest's boundaries after Wisconsin had been sliced off.

"Today the area is the home of more than twenty-five million people in the five full states formed from it—about one-fifth of the population of the whole United States.

"Launching the new Territory involved congress in some budget-balancing real estate deals. The famous Ohio company, which started with a dozen men around a table at the Bunch of Grapes tavern in Boston, bought more than 800,000 acres. The Symmes Purchase, marked off in the southwestern corner of Ohio for John Cleaves Symmes and other settlers from New Jersey, consisted of a quarter of a million acres. It was hoped that the statesman's bugbear, the national debt, could be paid off by land sales, even though the proceeds sometimes were no more than thirty cents an acre.

"Long before the settlers dared to build more windows in their houses than the family could man against Indian attack, other immigrants began to converge from the whole eastern seaboard upon the Northwest Territory. In the year after the Ordinance of 1787, twenty thousand came. Like General Putnam's band from Massachusetts, they traveled afoot and in ox-carts to the nearest trail which could conduct them through the massive Alleghenies.

"The westward exit from Pennsylvania, however, was most easily made by water: in the first year of the Northwest rush, more than 900 boats set out down the Ohio from Pittsburgh and contributed their timber to houses. General Putnam's pioneers, for instance, traveled overland through Pennsylvania to the town of West Newton, where they built flatboats and sailed down the Youghiogheny river into the Monogahela, which flows into the Ohio at Pittsburgh. The Ohio brought them to Fort Harmon, frontier outpost within whose protection they established the town named for Marie Antoinette—Marietta."

Watching Trends

Spending Depends on the Point of View.

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—It may ease your mind to learn that the question, whether it is all right for the government to spend money for this and that, is a matter of relativity.

Example: Administrator Hopkins of WPA was testifying before the Senate unemployment committee when Senator Lodge held up a WPA publication entitled "America Spreads Her Wings." It had to do with airports.

"That," said Lodge, "is beautifully printed. Mr. Williams tells me that this cost $10,000." Further, he said, a musical recording project had cost $72,000 and WPA movies $101,000, a round total of $183,000.

"At $800 a year," said Lodge, "that would give work to 230 workers. Do you call that administration expense?"

Said Hopkins: "In terms of the five or six billion dollars we spent, it would not amount to much."

Farley Slipping?

INTERIOR department is chortling these days. The hired hands there credit their chief with out-guessing James A. Farley, the super-super political guesser who called the turn in 1936 right down to Maine and Vermont. The interior story has it that Farley advised the president that the Kelly-Nash organization had the Illinois primary "in the bag." Interior's Harold Ickes, however, told the President to put his nickels on the organization of Governor Horner to win. Horner won.

A BIG moment in the life of a senator is when he can have his secretary bring to the floor of the Senate a huge stack of letters for him to sign in the presence of other Senators and an admiring gallery. A secretary puts the stack of letters before him and as the Senator signs each one, he pulls it off to expose a new one.

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan does it occasionally, but our favorite letter-signer-in-public is McKellar of Tennessee. He signs "Kenneth McKellar" in great sweeping two-inch up and down strokes that spread the name over half a page. It is truly magnificent.

Metamorphosis.

IT SEEMS that the first party of Swedes to reach Minnesota didn't do so well as those coming in later years. Alexander D. Fraser, associate professor of archaeology in the University of Virginia, relates that a party of Norsemen reached the present area of Minnesota by way of Lake Superior. An inscription found near Kensington, Minn., 175 miles southwest of Duluth, discloses that the party was attacked by Indians, meeting a tragic fate about the year 1362. Viking axes and hatchets have been found in the neighborhood.

President Roosevelt is credited with telling familiar White House guests that when Jimmy Roosevelt first came to the White House as a secretary he nearly boiled over every time a newspaper or magazine writer gave him what he thought was an unfair going-over. He would dash into the executive offices saying: "I'll sue him for libel." Now, the president relates, Jimmy just says:

"The so-and-so!"—or words to that effect.

Press Adventure.

HANGING in the White House press room is a colored photograph of a section of the Olympic peninsula in Washington (state of) which recently has been set aside as a primitive area. Last fall on his western trip the president visited the area, followed by a squad of reporters who bounced unhappily through rain over the immature road they traveled. In recollection of that, the picture was inscribed by the President: "To my boys—in memory of their heroic efforts and uncomplaining courage. Sept. 30, 1937."

DIPLOMATIC note: To us from a good source has come this story—

Representatives of the Chinese and Japanese embassies met quite by accident in the outer office of a munitions manufacturer in New York.

Politely they smiled, then one said: "Well, I guess we both know what we are here for." Both did. Net result was a hasty agreement on what they would pay for their needs. The agreement, said our informant, brought a 20 per cent reduction in munitions prices.

As Others See It

Vox Populi.

Most of the messages reaching Washington now are said to oppose additional spending. Evidently some of the taxpayers back home are expressing themselves. —Kansas City Star.

Married Folks and Separate Vacations.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HOW about vacation this year? Should Mame and Fred—and the kids, if there are any—go off together, as usual? Or should Fred, at last, be permitted to "loaf around that dirty old mountain shack," while Mame has a Perfectly Gorgeous Time at that swank new beach resort?

Simple question. Perhaps you think it doesn't matter greatly. If so—guess again! Those first five words strike at our deepest human necessity . . . and reveal why marriage is either a heaven or a hell.

This year it's Virginia (Mrs. M. Monroe) Townsend, of Baltimore, who opens the hunting season with a few sweetly sugared words, guaranteed to win the exclusive Female Vote in all 48 states.

"Married couples," says Virginia, "share their joys and sorrows and face their tasks and problems together. Then why not share the "cake" of life as well as the "bread and butter"? Day in and day out, a couple engage in routine tasks. They may not have time to develop common interests or discover their hidden characteristics. Why not use vacation time for this purpose—get to know each other better . . . add another link to that chain of perfect understanding which is the basis of every satisfying union?"

Virginia Townsend,
Baltimore, Md.

Yes, I admit, it listens lovely, lady. But any insane asylum could show you at least fifty highly depressing proofs of why it won't work. You heard, while still a toddler, that "self-preservation is the first law of nature." But the ancient axiom doesn't go far enough . . . it fails to inform us that PRIVACY is the first law of self-preservation.

People need to BE ALONE occasionally, as desperately as they need to eat, drink or sleep. SOLITUDE is the shrinking soul's bulwark against the torturing intrusion and meddling of other people—even one's Best Beloveds. It is the one sure haven where it may escape from the horrors of Regimentation . . . where it may FIND itself and RENEW itself and, by these processes, manage to retain its individuality.

The blazing inescapable light used in the Third Degree is not as brutal as a constant companionship which permits no privacy or occasional separation. And nothing could be a greater menace to love, romance or marriage than such continuous association. Marriage goes on the rocks, not because we know TOO LITTLE about each other, but because we know TOO MUCH . . . not because we see each other TOO SELDOM, but because we see each other TOO OFTEN.

The very attraction which leads us to the altar is rooted in the mysterious differences between our personalities. We are excited and intrigued . . . our lives are magically enriched and enlarged by this new adventure in life. So we marry . . . and forthwith use every device to destroy those differences which first allured us!

"TWO HEARTS SHOULD BEAT AS ONE!" we cry. Piffle! They can't . . . they were never intended to . . . and they become as stale as last week's mush if forced to do so.

People were meant to be people first . . . husbands and wives after. Nor is the constant craving for a mate's society a sign of love, as is popularly supposed. IT IS A SIGN OF AN EMPTY NOODLE, WHICH HAS NO RESOURCES WITHIN ITSELF — NEITHER THE INTELLIGENCE NOR COURAGE TO FACE REALITY ALONE.

I know no more shameful confession of one's personal inadequacy—or spinelessness—than the statement, "WE HAVE NEVER SPENT A DAY APART!" Neither have the two halves of a clam—but why boast about it!

If you want to keep each other, learn to lose each other now and then.

If you want to be happy together, learn to be happy apart.

Burning the Books.

Now so called "non-Aryan" books are being removed from the great Austrian national library and burned. The books already removed from circulation in the shops include not only those of Jewish writers like Stefan Zweig, Jacob Wasserman and Viki Baum, but the famous novels of Thomas Mann, who is not a Jew, but a liberal nonconforming German.

Presumably Austria is to go through the same experience that Germany has gone through where Heine's "Lorelei" is still printed in the school readers, but credited to "Author Unknown;" where the works of Einstein and a dozen other Nobel prize winners are banned; where Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" music is forbidden, and the war memorial, "A Mother in Grief," has been removed from a park in Frankfurt because the sculptor was a Jew.

In the early Roman empire a historian was put to death and his books burned because he wrote admiringly of some of the leaders of the Roman republic. The same sort of thing happened repeatedly in the Middle Ages. These incidents have not been regarded as evidences of civilization.—Kansas City Star.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

That Word "Abeyance."

A thing "held in abeyance," as the well-known expression has it, is a thing held awaiting a certain condition or circumstance. It is something held in waiting. It is a far cry from that, however, to "gaping expectancy"—yet that is how it started.

From the Latin "badare," meaning to gape, we have "abeyance" directly through the Old French—"a" plus "bear," meaning also "to gape," "to expect," "to look with open mouth!" It was used even for "longing." Next it appeared as the English legal term, "abeyance," used with reference to certain rights being suspended or temporarily suppressed. Hence our simple "held waiting," "held in temporary suspension."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Conversation piece at midnight: Roy Howard, the publisher, is sitting at a table adorned with spreading cocoanut blossoms, imported from Hawaii. He is chatting with Commander Bailis of the coast guard, and with Mr. and Mrs. George Sutton, of the Sutton news agency; with Charles Rochester, the hotel man, who is his host for the evening, and with Mrs. Rochester, and a number of people whom your correspondent can not identify.

Out in front, in a pool of light, three girls in skirts made of Ti (tea) leaves are swaying softly to the strains of a murmuring tropic lullaby. And the man at the microphone is singing softly a song which runs like this: "To you, Sweetheart, a-lo-ha—from the bottom-of—my heart—Keep the smile—on your lips—Brush the tears—from your eye . . ." It goes on like that. It is Ray Kenney singing, and when Ray sings, the best is singing.

IT IS his homecoming, and much of New York is here to welcome him back . . . They are jammed at tables over which hang vast palm fronds . . . It is, of course, the Hawaiian room at the Lexington hotel . . .

Meanwhile busy waiters are placing before guests glasses that are the tallest in town . . . They are about 14 inches high. They are served sitting in a deep, hollow plate, which is necessary, because five or six inches of crushed ice has been frozen about the glass. . . . It clings to the glass like a frosted pineapple . . . This refreshment is called "The Dagger" . . . and it will stab you and wound you if you are not careful . . . It is of rum and fruit juices and, to the palate, is reminiscent of the daiquiri . . . Those waiters handle so many "Daggers" they could qualify as knife throwers.

Suddenly Charles Rochester rises casually and strolls over to one of his aides. The man nods understandingly, catches Kenney's eye, and Kenney gives him an answering nod. Rochester returns to his guests and sits down.

IT IS one minute of midnight. As Kenney and four of his men leave the orchestra stand and wander over to Mr. Rochester's table, an attache of the room plugs a telephone into the wall. He hands the telephone to Mr. Rochester, who takes it and turns to Roy Howard.

"Roy," he says, "here's a call for you."

"For me? Thanks." He takes the phone, speaks into the transmitter. At first incredulity comes over his face. He is surprised, then amazed. Finally his countenance is wreathed in smiles.

For Rochester has arranged a surprise call for Roy Howard, publisher. It is from his daughter in Honolulu, who is working on one of the newspapers there. And so midnight strikes for Roy Howard. And while he talks with his daughter Ray Kenney and his men serenade her softly, in the background. She tells her father that she hears every word, perfectly. The happy man talks a few moments longer, says aloha, and hangs up.

It seems to me that this surprise Charles Rochester has arranged for his friend is one of the nicest, most genuinely thoughtful things he could have done.

co-operation to a meeting in Washington.

It was Hanes who contacted the executives and initiated the idea that led to the dramatic pronouncement less than 24 hours before Ford's visit to the White House.

Hanes' aids said that he intended to contact the various executives and convey to them Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper's suggestion that they draft a concrete program of joint business-government recovery aids.

Ford Coins New Word, It's 'Ptsssssssssss.'

NEW YORK — (NS) — Parrying all questions pertaining to his luncheon with President Roosevelt, as well as his opinions with regard to a possible third term for the president, Henry Ford, the motor magnate added a new word to the great American vocabulary

It is the long hiss, or sniff derogatory.

Asked concerning his declaration in Boston that Vice President Garner was his choice for 1940, he was noncommittal to this extent:

"Ptsssssss," sniffed Mr. Ford.

"Did you say 'no'?" a reporter asked innocently.

"I said," said Mr. Ford, succinctly and then gesturing with his head—"Ptsssssssssss!"

He was in a genial mood when approached by reporters and photographers, posed for two stills each, but ducked the newsreels as he has for many years. Of Mr. Roosevelt he said:

"You never heard me say anything against him. What's the use? He's trying to do the best he can, just as you and I."

He answered in generalities the question as to whether he had come away from his famous luncheon date with any more assurance as to the improvement of conditions. He said:

"Conditions are going to change. They always do. For the better? Certainly. People have to learn to wake up and go to work. We are just beginning to approach civilization.

"A lot of people think they can live off money. Money isn't wealth. Money is just a token of it. Wealth is knowledge and experience and work. There's plenty to do in industry. Nothing is perfected yet. Airplanes, motor cars, railroads, none of them are perfected yet

"Motor cars are still not light enough and durable enough.

"A lot of people are half asleep and looking for a leader and when they get one he puts things over on them People are too gullible. They ought to lead themselves."

Ford said that too many people were following the chimera of security. "Security is a delusion," he said and then pointed out that the only real security was knowledge and the willingness to pitch in and work.

Mystery as to who killed Rudolph Sabatino, 28-year-old proprietor of an exclusive fur shop in Chicago, baffles police. The bullet-ridden body of Sabatino was found in a "lover's lane." Police questioned a 28-year-old mother, Mrs. Anna Cammarata, on information furnished by Sabatino's wife, but she denied any knowledge of the killing be our next president, but, as things are, I don't think you could make a better choice."

Of his own political views Ford told the Boston newspaperman:

"I'm a Republican for the same reason I have two ears, a nose, a mouth and two eyes, and the name Ford. My father had 'em—that was my father's name, and my father was a Republican. So I'm a Republican—just born one. It's always been that way."

Of the nation at large, he said: "We've got to take a greater interest in politics. The politicians are on their way out. The people of this country are beginning to realize they'd better run their own government. You see, what we've done, we've sort of drifted into the habit of letting politicians run our politics.

"There's a big difference between politics and politicians. Politics is something that should interest every one of us. It's us—the way we live, the way we live today, the way we're going to live tomorrow. It's the laws we live by and the way we're going to run our business and our schools, and the taxes we're going to pay and the things we're going to do and the things we're going to let each other get out of life.

"Politicians are—oh, well, that's one way some people have of making a living.

"The politicians need help. This business they've made for themselves of running our business has gotten to be too much for them.

"We've got to begin to take a more active interest ourselves We've got to begin to step in and say, 'Look here' This is what we want to do! This is the way we want things done!'

"Mind you, I'm not criticizing anyone or anything. What happens—whatever has happened—is for the best. It all adds to our experience. Perhaps—undoubtedly — we needed this experience. What are we here for? What is the purpose of our being here on earth? We're here to acquire experience. That's the whole substance of it."

WARNS AGAINST 'OPEN BOTTLES'

Enforcement Agent Says Law Forbids Customers to Have Liquor in Public Places.

Mansfielders who take their own bottles to taverns outside the city limits for a "quiet" evening of drinking, had better watch out or the goblins will get 'em.

The goblins in this case are Ernest E. Williams, enforcement agent from the state liquor department, and two of his men, in Mansfield to "clean up" the "open bottle" situation.

Williams said today that he had visited many taverns in the vicinity which do not sell liquor, and warned proprietors that customers who bring their own bottles and buy set-ups, will be arrested and prosecuted. The law does not apply to proprietors, Williams said, and the only way to stop the practice is to enforce the law as it concerns persons who have open bottles in public places

Williams added that he had talked to a number of persons at these places and in every case they pleaded ignorance of the law.

"The law forbids an open bottle of liquor in any public place in the possession of any person who is not authorized to sell it," Williams said.

The enforcement agent is working in Richland, Crawford, Wyandot and Morrow counties at the present time On his visits to places near here he was accompanied by sheriff's deputies.

Kettering was admitted to the hospital Sunday in a critical condition.

The cause of the infection is not known, his physician said. The patient also has developed a heart complication.

He was examined Tuesday by Dr. Walter Simpson of the Miami Valley hospital, Dayton, sent here by his brother. The General Motors official was in Mansfield Monday and Tuesday visiting with his brother.

SEES HITLER AS 'REAL WINNER' IN SPAIN'S WAR

Foreign Correspondent Says Nazis' Threat to Europe Helped Duce Aid Army.

(Editor's Note: One million persons have been killed in the bloody warfare which for the past 21 months has turned all of ancient Spain into a sanguinary battleground, according to H. R. Knickerbocker, foreign correspondent of International News Service. From Hendaye, on the Franco-Spanish frontier, Knickerbocker today cabled the following graphic picture of the nation still torn by a war which, he says, has already been won by the forces of fascism.)

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
(INS Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1938)

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier—The costliest civil war in the history of the world is drawing to its close just across the border in Spain. And Adolf Hitler, fuehrer of Greater Germany, has already won it.

The graves of one million Spaniards today present to a mournful world a new record for internecine slaughter within a period of 21 months. But no observers can predict correctly when the useless killing will cease, although it is now certain that a victory for Generalissimo Francisco Franco will eventually be proclaimed.

Lasts 2 to 6 Months.

The dying embers of this mighty conflagration which has snuffed out twice as many lives as the American Civil war within half the length of time could be extinguished within a fortnight. But expert observers believe it may go on for two months or a maximum of six.

Hitler is the real winner of this war, because:

First, without Hitler's threat to France and England, Mussolini could not have sent to Franco the troops which have turned the tide of battle in his favor.

Second, without Hitler's threat both the Soviet Union and France could and would have sent the government of Spain sufficient help to win.

Third, Hitler's appalling swift conquest of Austria finally led England and France to abandon all pretense of neutrality in the Spanish war and drove them precipitously into negotiations with Italy by which they acknowledged presence of Italian troops in Spain and by implication consent to their remaining until Franco's conquest is complete.

So now all the foreign friends of government Spain have deserted them. Their territory is cut in two parts. They are starving, bereft of munitions, hopelessly outnumbered in the air, blockaded on the sea and overwhelmed by the weight of material on land.

Everyone abroad, including their own sympathizers, concede victory to Franco but neither Barcelona nor Valencia nor Madrid will yet concede it because there are from fifty to one hundred thousand persons on the government side who expect to lose their lives if they surrender.

So they prefer to go on fighting.

The savage character of this war may best be measured by comparison with our own civil conflict which stood for fifty-four years as the bloodiest in history.

Our losses, north and south, from all causes were just short of half a million in four years out of a population in 1860 of 31,000,000. Spain's losses within twenty-one months have been at least one million—if one reduces the claims and charges of both sides by 50 per cent.

IDENTIFIED

Man Who Slashed His Throat Came Here From Canton.

The middle-aged man who slashed his throat yesterday with a razor blade has been identified by police as Thomas Breese, 48, of Canton, they said.

Breese was taken to the hospital yesterday after police found him lying unconscious on the Erie railroad right-of-way, near North Mulberry street. His throat had been slashed and a razor blade was found nearby.

Hospital attaches today reported the man's condition as "fair."

Detective E. C. Fuller questioned Breese at the hospital late yesterday and learned his name and address. Because of the man's weakened condition Fuller said he could not question him as to the reason for his act.

Mae West Tops Shirley Temple In Poll of Boys

ST. LOUIS—(INS)—Boys in their early teens prefer Mae West to Shirley Temple, but they would rather take part in some athletic event than to attend a movie; they think President Roosevelt is the greatest man living today, but most of them would rather be a movie star than president of the United States; "Popeye" is their favorite comic strip, and "Gangbusters" is their favorite radio program.

These were some of the conclusions drawn by officers of Optimist International, a service club with headquarters in St. Louis, on the basis of questionnaires answered by members of representative Junior Optimist clubs in 22 cities scattered throughout the United States and Canada.

Football was the favorite sport of 33.4 per cent of the boys answering the questionnaire. Basketball received 19.3 per cent of the votes and baseball 18.8 per cent, with swimming and fishing next.

HITS GOVERNOR

Elyria Barber Says Davey Failed to Act on Charge.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— A charge that Gov. Martin L. Davey's office failed to act after investigation of a complaint of fixing a case before the state board of barber examiners has been made in a sworn statement to Detective Capt. John E. Savage.

The charge was made by an Elyria, O., barber, who added an accusation against Benjamin Bontempo, suspended president of the state board who is charged with blackmail in allegedly using his state position to force barbers into an association.

The Elyria barber said he was summoned before Bontempo's board in Columbus last year and had his license suspended for an alleged violation of the sanitary code, according to Capt. Savage. He said Bontempo, after this penalty had been given, turned to him and said, "you go back and join the union and raise your prices and it will be to your advantage."

GIRLS DEBATE SHORT SKIRTS

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Are girls wearing their skirts too short? Hunter college students say "no;" The overwhelming defeat of the proposition, "Resolved, that skirts should be three inches longer," at a mock debate held at the college indicated feminine sentiment on number of years.

RELIEF BURDEN GETS TOO BIG FOR MICHIGAN

One Person in Every Six on Rolls, Survey Shows; Detroit Has Serious Problem.

(By United Press)

DETROIT—This fourth largest city in the nation, often recognized as the barometer of business and industry, faces a critical relief situation due to the recession in the automobile industry. Officials are looking toward Washington for assistance.

Not only Detroit but most of the other metropolitan centers of Michigan are hard-hit. They are suffering because the automobile industry which supports them is suffering. The need for direct federal aid is imperative, according to Mayor Richard Reading of Detroit and city officials throughout the state.

The Detroit welfare load has been increasing for the past several weeks at the rate of 1,200 cases a day. G. R. Harris, director of welfare, reported to Mayor Reading that the relief load now is past 35,000 cases, with no indication of slackening. Another 47,000 persons are employed by WPA, according to Harris.

Operate on Day Basis.

"Relief cash is being handled in Detroit on a day-to-day basis because the means of raising money have been exhausted," Reading said. "The state is able to advance Detroit only $1,800,000 of an estimated $5,100,000 which is required between now and June."

Harris explained that he did not see how the state and industrial cities could handle the situation without direct Federal aid.

The statewide situation was indicated in welfare reports that one of every six persons in Michigan is on relief. In Flint, where the auto industry is the lifeblood of the city, one of every three families receives welfare aid.

Gov. Frank Murphy has made several pleas to Washington. He received the promise from President Roosevelt that the administration would present to congress a comprehensive picture of the relief situation across the whole nation, with emphasis on Michigan.

"What Michigan needs," Murphy said, "is direct relief for employable who are unable to get jobs in private industry or with WPA."

Three hundred Michigan cities and towns joined the governor's appeal to Washington for relief. Officials explained that the WPA was not flexible enough to adjust itself to the rapidly mounting relief requirements and that local sponsors are unable to provide enough projects to give work to all employable out of work.

The relief load in Detroit, Flint, and Grand Rapids, the state's three largest cities, increased 10 per cent during the past month, it was shown in figures released by the state relief administration.

Takes Barefoot Walk Daily As Help to Health

MIDLAND, Mich.—(INS)—"Apples, tomatoes and humans need air," says ex-miner, Oren (Ginger) Young, 59, and so for 27 years, winter and summer, he has been taking his "daily airing-off period"—a 15-minute barefoot walk.

"Put apples in a hot room without fresh air," Young says, "and they rot rapidly. Give them air and they keep good for a long time."

One of Young's stunts which amazes visitors to the town, is to shovel the snow off his front walk while barefoot and clad only in a light shirt and trousers.

"Of course I wear an overcoat and protect myself from the cold like other folks, but not during my 15-minute daily airing-off period."

FLORIDA VOTES MAY 3 IN TEST ON NEW DEAL

Four Candidates Opposing Senator Pepper, Ardent Roosevelt Backer.

(By United Press)

MIAMI, Fla.—Florida voters on May 3 will ballot on five candidates for the Democratic nomination of U. S. senator in a primary election expected to indicate the state's sentiment toward the New Deal.

A record vote is believed likely as youthful Sen. Claude Pepper, ardent defender of the national administration, seeks a full term.

Pepper, nominated without opposition two years ago to fill the vacancy created by the death of Sen. Duncan U. Fletcher, this year has four challengers in the field against him. He is the only out-and-out New Deal candidate.

His major competition is J. Mark Wilcox, fourth district congressman, and former Gov. Dave Sholtz. Two lesser known candidates are Finley Moore, Lake City abstractor, and T. C. Merchant, Madison newspaper publisher.

Denies Being "Anti."

Wilcox, foe of President Roosevelt's court and government reorganization bills, the wages-and-hours measure and the Cuban trade treaty, counts on support in a number of quarters from forces opposed to the New Deal, although Wilcox has contended he is "not anti-New Deal or anti-anything."

Sholtz, who as governor from 1932 to 1936 worked closely with the Roosevelt administration, has criticized Federal spending and features of many New Deal policies in his campaign.

The national administration has indicated its policy in the Florida senatorial contest is "hands-off." The only declaration from administration spokesmen was a personal endorsement last winter of Pepper by James Roosevelt, son and secretary of the president. Wilcox criticized that endorsement as "unwarranted meddling."

The potentially-powerful Florida Townsend clubs vote has been sought by Pepper and Sholtz, with their approval of the Townsend organization's "general welfare act." Wilcox is opposed to the $200-a-month old-age pension plan.

The May 3 vote is not expected to decide the nomination. It is not improbable that any of the three major senate aspirants might receive a majority. As a result, the two high men will go into a run-off May 24.

The record vote total anticipated by election officials is attributed in part to the interest generated by the strenuous campaigning of the senate candidates. Even more so, however, it is expected as the result of abolition of the $11 poll tax as a voting requirement.

Northern Lights Throw Scare into Carolina Forest Wardens.

RALEIGH, N. C. —(AP)— Two North Carolina forest wardens set out in a hurry to extinguish the aurora borealis, or northern lights, thinking it was a forest fire.

They drove several miles at a fast clip in their fire fighting truck before finding out the bright glow in the north was not what they thought it was.

GOERING DECREE ON JEWS DRAWS U. S. SCRUTINY

Embassy to Seek Statement Clarifying Policy on Jewish Properties.

(By United Press)

BERLIN—The American embassy plans to ask the German government for clarification of the decree authorizing Field Marshal Hermann Goering, economic dictator, to "utilize" properties of foreign as well as German Jews, it was understood today.

Any clarifying information will be forwarded at once to the state department, so that the United States will know the actual intentions of the German government as regards property of Jews who are American citizens.

The embassy already has forwarded to the state department by cable a detailed summary of the decree, it was learned.

Speculation in foreign diplomatic and business quarters was centered on the degree to which Goering might apply his "utilization" decree, whose language was indefinite and made it impossible to tell whether any sort of confiscatory measures were planned or whether foreign Jews actually would be made to give up property they owned in Germany.

Foreign diplomatic envoys studied trade treaties to see whether they covered Goering's decree

The question was raised at once whether the United States-German treaty of 1933 was applicable insofar as the decree might affect American citizens of Jewish origin who own property in Germany, whether they reside here or not.

Both foreign diplomats and foreign banking interests were surprised by Goering's decree, and they were uncertain still as to its exact implications. But they expressed belief that it prepared the way to complete elimination of Jewish business interests in Germany — probably at sacrifice prices.

It was estimated that if "utilization" were restorted to, a matter of several billions of marks might be involved. (A mark is worth about 40 cents.)

Joseph Buerckel, Nazi leader in Austria, ordered special patrols of the crack "SS" storm troops to supplement ordinary police in street patrols to suppress any anti-Jewish excesses, especially against Jewish shop keepers.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

April 27.

MY NEIGHBOR has a fine potato patch. For years, by careful cultivation, cover crops, and fertilizer he enriched his soil and made the seed bed deeper. It used to be a lighter color and a firmer clay that would not let the moisture through

Now this soil has a luscious dark brown color that would make any farmer proud. Stones have been taken off and noxious weeds killed. Tons of rich manure have been hauled out during the winter, from the barn where he keeps cattle, hogs, and horses.

Two weeks ago I saw him plowing in this field To start a lane he throw one furrow slice upon the sod, then came back and placed another against the first. It made a nice, straight ridge across the field

The grass had grown heavily already, and as the stocky team of three bay horses swung in an even breast, against their well-oiled collars, I could hear the jointer cut the matted turf and saw it roll toward the furrow. He plowed nine inches deep, or more, and did not seem to touch a single spot of yellow subsoil He left it fallow so that frost might kill insect pests that moisture might soak in, that sunshine might aid the decay of organic matter

Two days ago I saw him disk this field three times—first the way he had plowed, then angling to the west, then to the east. After that he used a spring-tooth harrow and a drag to level the surface properly.

Yesterday he rode the planter. His son, on the rear seat, placed the potatoes in the hopper, so they would reach the furrows evenly. They planted 20 bushels of cut potatoes to the acre. I watched the planter come toward the road The shoe gouged a deep furrow, seed and fertilizer dropped to the bottom, and steel disks set at an angle threw the mellow covering of earth upon them like a thick blanket until it made a ridge several inches high. The rows stood out across the field, straight and long and even

It takes more knowledge and skill and faith than many people know, to plant a field of spuds.

REED SLAYING A MONTH OLD

Sheriff Still Without Clue to Assailant Who Killed Aged Man in Shack.

The murder of Sherman Reed, 58, a WPA worker, in his cabin on Seventh avenue a month ago last night, remained as much a mystery today as it was the night his body was found by a neighbor.

Although Sheriff E. P. Long and his staff and City Detective Lee Remy have followed up numerous "leads" in the case all of them have proved fruitless

Dozens of neighbors and associates of the slain man have been questioned by the officers, but none of them has been able to establish a motive or lead that would lead to the arrest of the killer.

Death came to Reed, father of 10 children, from a series of blows on the head with a blunt instrument which authorities believe was wielded by an attacker who came at the victim from behind as he stood beside his kitchen table.

Officers have clung to the revenge motive in the slaying and have centered their investigation on a search for an associate with whom Reed is believed to have quarreled, possibly months before his death

Father Hold's Youths Head Above Water With Own Submerged.

TAPPAHANNOCK Va —(AP)— P D. Kelly, 41, sacrificed his life so his only son, Donald, 16, might live.

His broken ankle was encased in a plaster cast, but Kelly plunged into the Rappahannock river and held his exhausted boy's head above water—his own submerged —until a row boat came.

The boy's fishing line, tangled in the father's clothing, enabled searchers to find his body in ten feet of water.

They were fishing when the youth's line broke. Donald swam after it and tired.

'PIONEERS' FED UP WITH TRAIL BLAZING, MODERN HARDSHIPS

I talked to the "hardy frontiersmen" back stage at Chardon and one guesses that pioneer blood is running thinner each day the expedition marches on. Erling Wade, University of Minnesota, packed a load of resentment beneath the velvet coat of a Colonial patriot, as he told of the hardships of the 1938 westward trek.

"The Revolutionary soldiers and Colonials who started out by wagon team and on horseback from Danvers, Mass., for Pittsburgh and the head waters of the Ohio, didn't know what hardships were. They should have followed us! We've slept on everything from concrete floors to husk mattresses," Wade said.

"We couldn't make beds of leaves and boughs because there weren't any trees—except those that we didn't dare touch. We blistered our feet by miles of trekking over concrete roads. Eight of us in a flat boat drifted down the Youghiogheny river for two days with nothing to eat but a five-pound box of candy and three sandwiches.

"When Rufus Putnam and his men blazed trails all day, they could cook themselves a substantial meal of corn bread and hot meat at night and then turn in on a bed of blankets or boughs. But not us We work like dogs all day, jounce around in state highway trucks, set up the portable stage, parade over miles of paved streets, go to luncheons, and at night attend banquets and listen to after dinner speakers talk about the same chapter in history. After that all we have to do is play two or three roles in the historical pageant, tear down the portable stage, pack up the stage trappings and costumes—and turn in around midnight. Sometimes we rate a bed and sometimes the floor of some building."

But none of this feeling is apparent when the boys—some of whom have let their hair and beards grow whither it will—ride or march at the head of the parades. Dressed in their buckskin, hob nailed shoes and rough jackets, they ride beside the old covered wagon in much the same manner as did the men of a century and a half ago.

The pageant presents a series of meetings in New England, out of which grew the ideas and plans for the opening of the Northwest Territory, which was in actuality payment to Colonial soldiers for their service in the Revolutionary war.

The Territory caravan comes to Mansfield Monday from Sandusky where it shows Saturday. Friday it will be in Norwalk and today it is in Oberlin. Mansfield will make a gala day of it, for the committee, headed by John Correll, has made extensive plans for the Territory celebration and thousands are expected to come to this city from surrounding towns.

And if Mansfield wants to "go to town" in showing the "pioneers" a good time, the thing to do is to say it with food. Because they frankly admit that they are hungry as hounds all of the time, and that in one town where "city chicken" was served, there was so little meat and so much of the wooden skewers — that they ate the skewers to help fill up the empty places!

As a safety measure during the celebration Monday afternoon and night, a large force of police, deputy sheriffs and detectives will be on duty in the city and at the fairgrounds where the night program will be held.

Bates warned residents to keep their homes locked if they attend the ceremonies and not to carry large amounts of money with them. He said he has received reports from other cities where the celebratons have been held that a number of persons have been victimized by the pickpockets

Organizations and business firms planning to enter floats in the Northwest territory parade Monday afternoon must notify committee members at the Chamber of Commerce rooms of their intentions, Paul W. Williams, publicity chairman, said today.

Mitchell blamed Duffy's informal approach to the inquiry for the interruption in the proceedings and said that he was willing to have workers questioned in an orderly manner.

Duffy has summoned Mrs. Florence Dailey and Daniel S. Earhart, sales tax division workers whom Hooper accused of directing his solicitation. Mrs. Dailey is the ister of State Democratic Chairman Francis W. Poulson.

Duffy said he expected to question about 100 civil service employes altogether.

CITY ASKED TO OK RECREATION PLANS OF WPA

12-Month Program Submitted by Board Would Augment Playground System.

City council had before it today a request from the city recreation board authorizing Al . Fendrick, city recreation director to co-operate with the WPA on a recreational leadership project.

The 12-month program, designed to augment the city's playground staff, and aimed at curbing juvenile delinquency, calls for the expenditure of approximately $20,000, largely federal funds.

The proposal includes $19,200 furnished by WPA to pay trained playground supervisors, while the city's share of $600 would be used to purchase equipment by the recreation board and would not necessitate any additional appropriations.

4 Classes of Activities.

Glenn Weller, city-WPA engineer, who drafted the project, said the program provides four general classifications of activities, social, crafts, dramatics and sports, for both summer and winter.

The project would give employment to 25 persons during the year. Weller added that the plan calls for the employment of a recreational director to supervise the activities and work directly under the city recreation director, four skilled recreation leaders, and 20 junior recreation leaders.

The supervisors would be assigned to the playgrounds operated by the city recreation department at Johns park, Liberty park, Prospect park, Western avenue school, North lake park, Hedges and Bushnell schools.

Weller explained that should the proposal be approved by council at its regular meeting next week, that the supervisors would go to work on the playgrounds by May 15.

Still Standing, Mansfield Block House Has Seen Many Changes In Its Life

By FLOYD DENT

The town of Mansfield was five years old when the War of 1812 was declared. There were about twenty-five cabins within its limits at that time. Following the surrender of Hull at Detroit the Indians were expected to lay waste to all frontier settlements in Ohio.

Seeking to forestall any such disaster the sturdy settlers with the help of two companies of soldiers built two block-houses on the square. One of round logs, was located near the center of the west side of the square and the other of hewn logs was near the center of the north side.

When the rumors of the Indian uprisings were heard all the people were bidden to seek refuge in the block-houses. The trouble did not become serious around Mansfield. There was but one occasion when the settlers had cause to worry.

Shortly after the defeat of Col. Crawford, Johnny Appleseed appeared in Mansfield and warned the settlers of the approach of a band of Indians bent on the destruction of all the homes in this vicinity. Johnny set out for help, traveling through the woods at night and returning the next evening from Mt. Vernon with a company of soldiers. The Indians heard that the block-house was heavily guarded and decided not to attack.

Upon the organization of Richland county, a court house was necessary. In the records of the commissioners we find under the date July 10, 1813, it states that, "the Commissioners proceeded to examine the block house and to order the same to be prepared for the reception of the court, and that the lower part of the same be prepared for the reception of prisoners, as a jail. And do further order that the said lot of carpenter work be sold to the lowest bidder, of the 24th day of July inst., which sale is advertised accordingly."

The necessary alterations were completed by a man named Luther Coe for the sum of $48. The first session of the court was held on Saturday, Aug. 28, 1813. The associate judges were Thomas Coulter, William Gass and Peter Kenney.

Records show that the block-house served as a religious meeting place and a school room. The growing community soon needed a larger court house and in 1816 it was decided to again remodel the blockhouse to fit the needs of the day. This time the logs from the lower story were used and a frame upper story was built to accommodate the court and jury.

This building served until 1827 when it was torn down and replaced by a brick court house. The old blockhouse was purchased by Gen. James Hedges who had it moved to his lot at 168 East Second street. He later sold the lot to a shingle maker named Carson with the understanding that the block house should be preserved. Carson faithfully lived up to his promise. He covered the logs with "barn siding" and used it for storage purposes.

When the Mansfield Historical Society was preparing to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the founding of Mansfield the old block house was again to serve as community. It was moved to the Courthouse yard and set up on the lawn. The upper story was constructed from the logs secured from an old log cabin built by Capt. Cunningham on a farm near Butler in 1821.

Following the centennial celebration, the block house was moved to South Park where it is used as a storage room for several years. In the fall of 1929, the city officials, turned it over to the Boy Scouts and the Troop Committee of Troop 6, composed of E. M. Olin, J. R. Turner, M. P. Wolcott and Scoutmaster Glenn Taylor took over the job of restoring the building. The citizens in the vicinity of South Park responded to a call for funds and a sum of $500 was raised. New floors, stairs, new roof and other necessary repairs were made.

Again the block house is serving the community. A troop of Boy Scouts holds a meeting every week and lessons in citizenship are taught to the present generation. The very walls of the old building bespeak encouragement to the boys to become upright Americans and good citizens. The old landmark will have the best of care and its present caretakers will do their best to further the traditions surrounding it.

Book of the Week

"MIDNIGHT AND PERCY JONES," a detective novel by Vincent Starrett; (Covici-Friede; $2.)

Vincent Starrett, the Chicago bibliophile, has just celebrated his 20th year as an author with a new detective novel, "Midnight and Percy Jones." But rumor hath it that he has three or four other volumes in preparation—including a book of poetry, a tome on literary themes, and possibly another detective tale.

This fact is cited as evidence of the many sided interest of this writer, who firmly declined to desert Chicago when all the other literary lights of his generation began their trek eastward from the midwestern capital some years ago. He recently returned there after a trip around the world to continue his literary career.

In his 20 years of writing Starrett has turned out a huge volume of work on almost every conceivable theme, but in between books of short stories, whimsy novels, literary reminiscences, poetry and what not he has found time to produce a lengthening list of detective stories—sleuth tales written with real literary polish.

His latest is laid, of course, in Chicago, and the detective, an amateur, is Riley Blackwood, cynical drama critic of a Chicago newspaper. The lateness of the arrival of Percy Jones, popular radio commentator, at a Lake Shore Drive party provides the first ominous note in the plot, with the action advancing quickly amid a tangle of red headed gals, Persian kittens, a turbaned Hindu and a succession of murders. Riley solves them all and the conclusion is an ingenious piece of work.

Starrett writes a detective tale as though he enjoys it thoroughly, and so he does. He is an avid reader of sleuth fictions, too. He probably knows Sherlock Holmes by heart and he once wrote a book about the great English bloodhound.

Probably there is no rhyme or reason in it, but the subject of books and murders seems to go hand in hand with some writers. Starrett has written much about books and much about murders. Edmund Pearson similarly was torn between the two themes, and during his life he jumped from one to the other.

The late Gilbert K. Chesterton wrote much about life and letters, but likewise he wrote many a detective tale. Carolyn Wells has touched on both themes Willard Huntington Wright (S. S. Van Dine) is another. The list is a long one. By J. S.

"Action Speaks Louder Than Words" Is Theme of Akron World's Tonic Booster

Says "Speedy Relief Action Wins Faith in Famous Medicine Better Than Whole Pages of Words"

Week after week, thousands upon thousands of words are spoken in praise of the now famous World's Tonic. Week after week thousands of these words are printed in an effort to reach those suffering from the many and numerous sicknesses and ills which may have been brought about by occasional constipation.

We want to help. That's why we keep telling you these stories about relief. Many of you may be utterly discouraged. You in particular we are trying to reach and here is one reason. A sick person does not usually think along cheerful lines. A depressed mind can have dozens of imaginary diseases and ailments and usually fears for the worst. Medical history shows many cases of affliction actually brought upon people because they continued to think they had this or that disease. Many symptoms resulting from occasional constipation are similar in effect to those of various serious diseases and again medical history has shown where these symptoms have advanced from the imaginary stage to reality and where a factor may have been occasional constipation.

And so we continue to send our messages to ye who suffer. Before your worried minds bring about many fanciful diseases and maladies, and before your present symptoms develop into unfortunate reality. GIVE WORLD'S TONIC A TRY. We will continue to supply the words but we can supply no action until you try World's Tonic. And now for the story of Mr. John Suchy of 244 Beaver St., Akron, Ohio.

"I got such speedy relief from a bad state of constipation and just one short week's experience has done more to give me faith in it than whole pages of words could ever do. My kidneys were weakened and my stomach upset so much that nervousness got such a hold on me my work was interfered with seriously. I had back and limb pains that were driving me almost crazy. I imagined a dozen different diseases and so far, nothing had given me the relief I wanted so badly. In one short week my constipation had improved so splendidly that all its resulting aches and pains are practically gone. My kidneys seem much better and my stomach too. There are a lot of worries off my mind and I've learned a valuable lesson which is—Never be without World's Tonic."

World's Tonic is intended to assist nature in promoting a free and liberal bowel action. You do not have to buy extra pills or tablets to get results.

Chamberlain, Daladier Form New London-Paris Axis

FINISH DRAFT OF STRONGER MILITARY PACT

British, French Envoys Meet as Japs Win New Success; Fascists Start Drive.

(By Associated Press)

A council table in London's dingy Downing street today became the pivot of European diplomacy while the world's wars brought fresh Japanese success in China and a new insurgent drive in Spain to "pocket" a strategic sector of the government's eastern coast.

British Prime Minister Chamberlain, French Premier Daladier and their foreign ministers, Viscount Halifax and Georges Bonnet, met to put finishing touches on a plan of closely co-ordinated military activity.

One version of the functioning of the London-Paris axis was that it would gear France and Britain so closely together that one could not go to war without the other.

Wants Strong Declaration.

Czechoslovakia, having refused a demand of Konrad Henlein, leader of the Nazi Sudeten Germans, for neutralization of her foreign policy, which means abandonment of her alliances with France and Soviet Russia, would like to see Britain and France issue a strong declaration on the central European situation.

But anything beyond implications of preparedness to protect Czechoslovakia from German aggression was not expected.

The subjects of Anglo-French discussion girdled the world—from the problem of protecting interests in China to the war in Spain and the danger to European peace in the Nazi threat to Czechoslovakia.

Henlein has demanded autonomy for 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans and a German official of cabinet rank said last night in Berlin that the Sudetens would demand "inevitable" union with Germany—"the only question is whether it can be done without shedding blood."

Japan's reinvigorated South Shantung army was reported to have driven within 10 miles of the Lunghai railway after regaining ground lost early this month in its greatest reverse.

Blast Chinese Lines.

The Japanese asserted a hole had been blasted in Chinese lines some 50 miles east of the vital rail center, Suchow, and that their artillery was within range of the Lunghai railway, backbone of the 500-mile Central China front.

The war in Spain was slowed up by heavy rains but, despite the weather, Gen. Jose Varela's insurgent army drove eastward against Sagunto, on the government coast, threatening to "pocket" government forces facing a frontal push north of Castellon de la Plana.

Dispatches from the government side said growing government resistance north of Sagunto had halted the frontal drive southward along the coast against Castellon de la Plana, Sagunto and Valencia.

Butler Quilting Expert To Show Collection Here

Mansfield quilt experts will have an opportunity to see one of the most unusual collections in this part of the state Wednesday when the First Circle of Central Methodist church sponsors a quilt exhibit at the church. The exhibit will open at 7 p. m., and will be made up of prize quilts and collections from a number of Mansfield families.

George B. Keefer, 82, of Butler, who has gained the reputation of being the "best quilter" and has taken first prizes wherever his handiwork has been displayed, will bring the best of his collection here for the exhibit.

Keefer was for many years janitor of the Lucas school and for 40 years made quilts for every student that graduated, sometimes making as many as 26 gift quilts in one year. The classes have averaged 15 a year.

He has given his quilts names which are suggested either by the pattern or the colors, among them are Grand Dahlia.. Royal Aster. The Road to Egypt. Trip Around the World. Beautiful Skies of France, and Lily of the Mountains.

The quilt show will be held in the dining room of the church.

Up and Down THE STREET

Store street windows are commencing to take on an early 19th century atmosphere, in anticipation of Northwest Territory day in Mansfield next Monday. From attics and antique collections proprietors are borrowing household items and costumes that were used by the pioneers who settled Ohio. Among them are spinning wheels, candle molds, coffee pots and coffee grinders, cooking utensils, pieces of handwoven cloth, and clothes that were worn by the early settlers. School children will have a rare opportunity by inspecting these antiques to learn how their forefathers lived 150 years ago.

Maybe it was a poor job of copy-reading, or maybe it was the proof-reading that was bad. At any rate, the decorations going up over town for the Northwest Territory celebration Monday contain a glaring error. Instead of referring to the Northwest celebration, the word is printed on the bunting "Northwestern." Perhaps someone got the Territory confused with Northwestern university, but even then the colors wouldn't be right for Northwestern.

Members of Boy Scout troop No. 4, assisted by Mansfield scout officials, today began a search for an old linen duster, used in the days when the automobile was a large buggy with a motor attachment. The troop wants to borrow the duster for the driver of the 1908 Zimmerman automobile, which it will enter in the Northwest Territory parade Monday. Troop members have located the cap, gauntlets and goggles.

People who have difficulty reading the present day railroad time tables should take a look at the one in the possession of Charles Greer, North Mulberry street, which was published in 1893 for the "Walhounding R. R." The table is printed on a single sheet of paper, 24 by 40 inches and lists the passenger and freight trains together, running between Loudonville and Coshocton. If you didn't watch your p's and q's you were apt to find yourself aboard a freight train instead of a passenger coach.

$634 ONLY CASH COOGAN CAN HOPE TO COLLECT IN LAW SUIT

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD—Jackie Coogan discovered today that he owes his estate $171 for the suit he has on his back, while the $4,000,000 he thought he had earned has dwindled to $558,002, including 60 cents for two dozen eggs produced by the hens he bought his mother.

Also, he found that most of his property consists of real estate bought during boom times, while all the cash he can hope to collect in his suit against his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Bernstein, totals $634.26.

Jackie, who once earned that much in one day before the movie cameras, looked at the red ink in his account books and said he was "appalled."

"I am going to find out who got my money and what became of it," Jackie, now 23 years old, added. "The only tangible thing of any value remaining is real estate, which is listed at the price paid for it many years ago on a high market.

"I am convinced that it is listed on the books of the Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc., at vastly more than its actual present-day value."

Jackie said that if Judge Emmet H. Wilson decides next week he deserves what is left of his earnings, he intends to lump the whole business in a trust fund.

Coogan, who believed that he was a multi-millionaire when he married Actress Betty Grable last December, discovered his true financial circumstances when John E. Biby, court receiver, filed an inventory of all Jackie's assests.

GOVERNOR FIRES AID, BATTLE IN PRIMARIES HOT

Attorney General, Candidate for Governor, Hits 'Gifts' to Party Leaders.

(By International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Grave charges of bribery and corruption in the cabinet of Gov. George H. Earle, resulting in dismissal of the state's attorney general who levelled the accusations, today pushed Pennsylvania's Democratic party primary perilously near utter disruption.

Three weeks from primary election day, the sensational development climaxed months of party dissension over the Democratic three-way gubernatorial fight.

Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, dismissed by Governor Earle for refusing to disclose immediately all evidence behind his charges, promised a new statement today and a meeting with the local district attorney to press for a grand jury investigation. Margiotti, an independent Democratic candidate for governor, charged his ouster was engineered by "the guilty persons to shear me of my authority."

Earle Names Dean.

Governor Earle appointed Dean Herbert F. Goodrich of the University of Pennsylvania law school as the former attorney general's successor for the remaining eight months of his administration. Goodrich said he would announce his decision on acceptance today.

Margiotti specifically charged Secretary of the Commonwealth David L. Lawrence, Democratic state chairman, and Secretary of Labor and Industry Ralph M. Beshore, Democratic state committee secretary, with each receiving $10,000 from brewery interests for "favorable" legislation in 1935. Matthew H. McCloskey, Philadelphia Democratic leader and wealthy contractor, whose company has received some $10,000,000 in state contracts, was a "go-between," Margiotti charged.

Angry and emphatic denials were immediately forthcoming from all principals concerned.

"An unmitigated lie," said Bashore. "Absolutely no truth in it," commented Lawrence.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Even Grand Juries Have No Power as Compared To That Wielded By WPA

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

TAMPA, Fla.—The politicians of the WPA have just got away with something in Tampa which is so raw that if it were not a matter of record you might not believe it could happen even in the United States.

A WPA employee served as foreman of a local grand jury which indicted nine politicians, all city and county officials, in connection with the traditional spring anti-gambling crusade. He was promptly fired from his WPA job on the ground of "no dough."

He smelled a rat and reported his disposal to the court immediately. Within two hours the head of the local WPA office reinstated him without explaining where he had suddenly raised the money for a salary which had been lopped off so short a time before.

The local court thought this looked like political intimidation of a grand jury after it had been dismissed, so the new grand jury began an investigation. There is a WPA man on the new grand jury, too, and it might cramp a grand juror's style to reflect that a member of a previous grand jury lost his WPA job after bringing in indictments against politicians.

The new grand jury summoned R. J. Dill, the state administrator of the WPA, and he refused to discuss the case on the ground that a state agency has no right to investigate a federal agency. He cited a letter from Harry Hopkins authorizing sub-chiefs of the WPA to release ballyhoo without restriction, but forbidding them to testify in regard to matters of an official or confidential character. The WPA protects its secrets.

Mr. Dill was cited before the local court and the local United States attorney won a decision for him based on federal statutes and decisions of the federal supreme court.

* * *

So now grand jurymen have no protection from the political machine which represents the New Deal in Florida. If a grand juror has a WPA job he may lose it. If he is a contractor or is engaged in any line of business which is controlled or touched by any federal agency the politicians of that federal agency can ruin him. If he even works for a firm which is beholden to a federal agency for favors or for its fundamental rights his boss may be forced to fire him or take the consequences.

The moral effect of this decision on future grand juries in cases involving politicians or their friends need not be speculated upon.

In this case one of those indicted is J. R. McLeod, the sheriff, who formerly had charge of the WPA in Tampa. He succeeded Dill, the present state boss, when Dill was promoted to his new powers and immunities. Later on McLeod was appointed sheriff, and now a WPA man has had the gall to indict him.

The victim is Carl Thoner, a former newspaper photographer. Thoner's job is to take pictures of WPA projects. He is not strong physically and naturally is much upset because now he is doubly guilty of lese majesty. Thoner didn't know he was doing wrong. He just figured a grand juror was supposed to do his duty and never thought of the possibility that a man could be 'canned" for that. There are still some citizens as naive as that.

Now, under the court's ruling he can be fired again. This time for good. The local court can do nothing to protect him or punish anyone.

Thoner was fired by J. D. Brotchie, the present local WPA boss, who supposedly acted on instructions from Dill, phoned from Miami. About the time of this telephone call Dill was conferring with the indicted Sheriff McLeod, his old colleague in the WPA, but within two hours, as the smell began to spread over Florida, Thoner was reinstated.

The new grand jury and the court naturally wanted to know what Dill said to McLeod and vice versa and what consideration prompted Thoner's dismissal and reinstatement. Dill said it was none of their business. The WPA in Washington wired the grand jury that, inasmuch as Thoner was reinstated the case wasn't worth bothering about. That wire ignored the question of intimidation of a grand jury.

* * *

The Florida WPA belongs to Senator Claude Pepper, a candidate for re-election, whom Jimmy Roosevelt, the selfless secretary with the passion for anonymity, recently blessed for re-election with the indorsement of the New Deal.

Senator Pepper hasn't said a word about the case. It's in the bag.

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—For a long time now Hollywood's air pictures have been aiming at the thrills and excitement of "Wings," a silent film of eleven years ago. The target of future aerial dramas will have to be "Test Pilot."

This new one from the Metro lot is a dramatic account of the life of a man engaged in one of the world's most hazardous and spectacular occupations today—the daredevil who tries out new flying models from the factory to see how safe they are and just what performance they'll give.

Clark Gable is the test pilot of the story, Spencer Tracy his mechanic, Lionel Barrymore their boss—and Myrna Loy the Kansas girl and Gable's love-at-first-sight when he crashes on her farm during a cross-country speed test. Here are three academy award winners and a girl rated by many as top favorite among the stars, and in "Test Pilot" they have a vehicle which might do well enough without them but with them is sure to win high favor.

The story resolves itself (after what seemed to me an off-key beginning with Miss Loy a bit on the "Thin Man" side of glibness) into a conflict between the tester's wife and the fatal fascination of the sky—and this, aided by passages of superb dialogue, is splendidly and movingly presented. Especially admirable in the screen play by Vincent Lawrence and Waldemar Young, and in Victor Fleming's direction, is the absence of anticipated clinches: Tracy, the quiet pal, does not fall in love with Gable's wife; the picture, although spotted with natural humor, never once halts for obvious "comedy relief"; in the climactic test flight the little wife does NOT go aloft with the men.

In the acting department Gable romps away with first place in the spotlighted role, but Tracy when his part permits more than justifies that academy Oscar, Barrymore shines too in his few big scenes, and Miss Loy (who probably won't ever win an Oscar) does very well in this fast company, and that patented charm of hers is potent. In lesser roles Marjorie Main, Gloria Holden and Ted Pearson (as Myrna's "nice boy friend" in Kansas) have brilliant scenes.

Air thrills include scenes from the Cleveland air races, a power dive in which the plane's wings fall off and the pilot bails out; the crash of a giant new army bomber. Photographically and technically, apart from their sustained fascination and vicarious terror, these scenes are powerful. They look like the real thing (as most of them are) and the story is swift enough to distract any would-be detectors of camera trickery.

The pictures of Twentieth Century-Fox stars and players adorn the wall of the celebrated studio restaurant known as the Cafe de Paris . . . Like satellites about a sun, they surround the image of Darryl Zanuck, and Shirley Temple is prominent in the throng.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

MODERN ART TOPIC AT STUDY GROUP MEETING

Miss Marjorie Campbell Prepares Paper for Conversational Club; Program Committee Named; Mrs. Gott Hostess.

MISS MARJORIE CAMPBELL prepared a paper which was presented by Mrs. George Hypes yesterday at the meeting of the Conversational club on the subject, "Modern American Art and Artists."

Summarizing the discussion of the modern trend she stated "Whatever our American style is or is to be one can hardly help feeling that at last such is in the making. Given opportunity to function in a social and economic system the artists of today have professional equipment, versatility, mental vigor and artists' vision to create an art of high order."

At another point the paper explained that there is much talk of an American renaissance. The promotion of collectors dealers and curators has brought the American artist to the fore. Then too, the depression, coupled with the newly trained and intelligent public, has given our own creations a higher place, the speaker indicated.

Both critics and the public are demanding a native art—experienced, original, distinct and free of outside influences. Some of the powerful and original modern artists are Winslow Homer. Albert Ryder and Thomas Eakins.

During the short business meeting the program committee for the coming year was named. Members are Mrs. James Boyd, jr., Mrs. Frank T. Wendt and Mrs. R. D. Campbell. Guests at the meeting were Mrs. W. H. McLelland and Mrs. Otis Cummins. Mrs. Douglas Gott was hostess at the Susie Janis home.

The ceremony was read April 20 at 7:45 p. m. in the Methodist Episcopal church at Rogers, with Rev. Middleton officiating.

Mrs. Wolfe wore a pink gorgette floor-length dress with blue accessories. Her bouquet was made of pink carnations, blue and pink sweet peas. The couple was unattended.

The bride is a graduate of Weller high school and has been employed at the General hospital. Mr. Wolfe is employed at the Kearns Packing company. Following the ceremony the couple went on a week's motor trip to Washington, D. C. The bride's parents entertained recently with a dinner party in their honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe are at home to friends at Olivesburg.

Morals Not Lower Than 25 Years Ago

By VIRGINIA LEE

ACCORDING to a nation-wide survey conducted recently by a national women's magazine, the majority of women believe that young people's morals are no lower than those of 25 years ago.

The title of the survey was "What the Women of America Think," and it shows that women are strongly opposed to promiscuous petting and sexual relations before marriage, but that they will stand by their daughters if they "get into trouble."

The opinions of the women interviewed contradicts flatly the view of alarmists who see in short skirts, gin, necking, automobiles, jazz, dancing and marital irregularities, the steady disintegration of morals.

According to these findings, this is what the women believe:

That it is wrong for young people to pet or kiss any person but the one they expect to marry.

That most young persons indulge in petting.

That sexual relations before marriage are not justified even by the difficulty of getting married.

That a daughter "in trouble" through such relations deserves sympathy and support.

That the moral faults which do most harm are excessive drinking, laziness and unkindness.

Reports the survey: "Analysis of the answers women gave to the question. 'Do you think that the moral standards of youth today are lower than they were 25 years ago?' shows that among all groups only the women over 45 years old—and then by a narrow margin of 51 per cent—subscribe to the idea that today's young people flame too much. The youngest group—women under 30—and those who are still single, are the most emphatic in supporting their own moral standards, two-thirds saying that they believe them to be as high as those of 25 years ago."

Excessive drinking is considered the most serious fault, according to the women quoted in the survey. 46 per cent of the women so stating; additional faults named were laziness or unwillingness to work, 32 per cent; unkindness, 24 per cent, and dishonesty, 19 per cent.

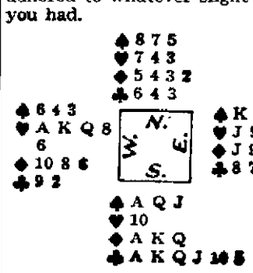
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GO FOR THEM ALL

WHEN YOUR contract is impossible of fulfillment unless several factors break exactly as you wish, the only thing to do is press your luck. Try for all of the breaks you need, even if they involve exactly even divisions of the missing cards in a couple of suits, plus a successful finesse. If one of your hopes misses out, at least you can give yourself credit for having adhered to whatever slight chance you had.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

When North responded to South's 2-Club bid with a call of 2-No Trumps, South decided to bid 6-Clubs, as he figured nothing could deter him from making a slam with these cards, regardless of what his partner held.

The gods smiled on this rash declarer when they presented him with one entry to what seemed like an entryless dummy. His correct ruff of the second heart trick with the club 10, as well as the drop of the opponents' trumps in two rounds, made the club 6 an entrance to dummy.

After cashing the diamonds A, K and Q, he went over to dummy with a trump and cashed his thirteenth diamond, on which he discarded a spade. His good fortune held out to the extent of the spade finesse working for him, with the result that the slam was made.

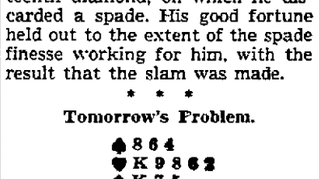
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

How should South play to make 7-No Trumps after the lead of the diamond Q?

Exercises For Bosom Development

By JULIET SHELBY
(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

LOOK TO YOUR front line. This spring bosoms are very much back in style. All the swell new clothes emphasize the bosom, and so we naturally have all become breast conscious. With this conciousness lots of us have gotten on the mourners' bench, because we have decided that our bosoms leave a lot to be desired. They are too big, they are too small, they are drooping or they are flabby. Most of us just aren't satisfied with our fronts.

What to do? About the best thing is to realize that you are probably much more critical than anyone else. You may think you are terribly out of shape, whereas your best friend may be thinking how lucky you are that you haven't her problems.

If you are worried about being too large there are several remedies. First reduce generally, and the excess fat on your bosom will fade away, too. Don't go in for drastic measures because that will injure your health and make the skin hang in creases. The second step is exercise. And the third important point is a correctly fitted uplift brassiere.

Here are some very good exercises: Stand erect, with your arms held at each side at shoulder level. Tense the muscles. Slowly bring your arms forward and cross them in front, still at shoulder level and extended stiffly, with elbows straight. Return to starting position. Repeat this alternating right over left, left over right. Next fold your arms over your chest, raise your elbows out and to shoulder level, clench your fists and tense all your muscles. Pull your arms apart and straighten out slowly. Reverse this motion.

Another Exercise.

Another exercise is: Stand erect, upper arms at shoulder level, elbows bent, hands touching shoulders. Keeping the hands at shoulders, raise the elbows as far above the head as possible. Lower your elbows to your chest, then swing them back as far as possible.

Select one of these exercises and start with it. Do not be too strenuous. As you get accustomed to the exercises you can do both exercises, doing each one about 15 times.

If you are fretting about being underdeveloped, try to put on weight generally. This will increase the size of your bosom. Always stand erect, and both morning and evening take deep breathing exercises. Stand at an open window and inhale slowly, then exhale slowly, mentally counting to 15 on both the intake and the exhale. This will develop your chest and make the breast appear larger. Dash cold water on your breast both night and morning. This will increase and develop the breasts slightly as well as tone the skin and prevent premature sagging.

The sagging bosom is another of our bete noirs. For this type exercise, cold water application and an uplift brassiere are the remedies. The breast stroke, as done with the arms while swimming, is a grand exercise. Do this about ten times the first day and increase the number gradually until you get up to 30.

Of course, correcting a problem bosom is a long, hard process, so don't expect to get the desired effect overnight.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Mary's voice trailed away into silence and she looked at me wonderingly as she answered my query if she could remember every direction her father-in-law had given her in her role in my play, which was soon to go into rehearsal again.

"Why?" I echoed. "It's very simple, Dearest. I wrote this play, and I have my own ideas as to the rendition of the role you are to play. But I want first to hear Mr. Veritzen's renditon of the role, for if he has drilled you in it, that is what I shall hear, and what I want to hear."

I looked up and around the room and visualized it as a stage.

"I'll move my chair back here," I said. "The footlights will be here," I waved an imaginary line across the center of the room, "and your entrance will be from that bedroom door."

"And I come down center to this table," she said, throwing herself into the spirit of the thing. "All right. Shall I enter?"

"Please!" I said and she walked to the bedroom door, opened it and closed it behind her. I knew that she would not make her entrance for several minutes. Possessng the temperament of the true artiste, she wished to "get under the skin" of the role.

It was fully five minutes before she came back into the room, stormily. It was not the entrance for which the role called and it was not the actress but the woman, Mary Veritzen, who spoke.

"I just can't do a thing," she stormed. "I thought I'd get into the feel of the part, but I can't manage it and say the lines in the way Father Veriten trained me. I feel just like a parrot. What shall I do?"

I smiled indulgently at her.

"Be a parrot," I told her, smiling. "It's just what I want you to be for the next hour, a nice, docile, little Polly. Make your entrance again, Dearest, and say your lines exactly as Mr. Veritzen told you to say them. I don't want a single inflection of your own."

She gave a gusty sigh.

"That will be dead easy," she said. "I've never been allowed to have an idea or an inflection of my own since I began studying this role."

"All the better for what I want," I told her. "You'll be virgin soil. Please begin."

She went back to the door and made her entrance according to the directions given in the manuscript. Then she began to speak her lines, and I listened carefully, not interrupting her by even the flicker of an eyelash until she had finished.

Mary Speechless.

"Well!" she demanded as I did not speak. 'I know it's bad, but I didn't think it was rotten enough to stun you speechless."

"Wait!" I said imperatively. "I must think."

For I had no words with which to express my horror at the monstrous thing Philip Veritzen had done to his gifted, young daughter-in-law. With diabolical cunning, he had made her technically perfect in the rendition of the role, had managed to drain every bit of life from it. It was almost as if an automaton were speaking the lines and going through the gestures. My horror and bewilderment suddenly gave way to fierce anger against my former employer.

His devilish scheme was only too clear to me. If Mary went through the lines in the manner he had taught her, she would be a hopeless failure at rehearsal.

The motive behind his scheme I could only conjecture. But one thing was like steel in my soul. He should not succeed in this, I resolved. He should not!

Household Hints

Menu Hint.

Broiled Fish Hollandaise Sauce
French Fried Potatoes
Molded Tomato Salad
Date Cottage Cheese Pie Coffee

A drawn butter gravy, lemon slices or Hollandaise sauce are unusally served with fish. I wash fish, wipe it dry, dip it in flour if I am frying it, but not if I'm broiling it. You can if you wish, however. For broiling I pre-heat the broiler, but have the gas turned low, put the fish in a greased pan or on the broiler rack, and cook it slowly until done—a matter of 10 minutes or so, if the fish is not too thick. Sprinkle with pepper and salt while broiling. Remove to platter and serve with preferred sauce in separate dish. The second fish sauce is particularly nice to serve with fresh salmon.

FISH SAUCE—Sauce for two pounds. One-half cup melted butter; rub in heaping tablespoon flour to a paste, one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, one teaspoon lemon juice; paprika and cayenne pepper and salt to taste; rub smooth. Add boiling water to cream consistency; add one-half cup onion, celery and parsley minced fine, with two hard boiled eggs also finely chopped.

DATE COTTAGE CHEESE PIE—One baked pastry shell, two egg yolks, one-third cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg, one-fourth teaspoon salt, two egg whites, one cup thin cream or rich milk, one and one-half cups (three-fourths pound) cottage cheese, one cup (one-half package) sliced dates, grated rind of one-half lemon, two tablespoons finely chopped nuts. Beat egg yolks; add sugar, spices, salt and milk. Add the cheese which has been mashed with a fork or rubbed through a coarse sieve and the dates, which have been cut in pieces with wet scissors. Mix well. Fold in the grated lemon rind and the egg whites. Pour the mixture into a baked pastry shell and sprinkle the nut meats over the top. Bake in a very moderate oven (325 degrees F.) until the custard will not adhere to a silver knife inserted in the center (30 to 40 minutes). Serve very cold. Will serve six.

Hard shell clams may be easily opened if boiling water is poured over them and they are allowed to stand two or three minutes.

Slacks are $3.95 to $6.95 and come in handsome plaids, or rich, plain color gabardines in the new high colors. Many even have belts to match. Another smart fashion item snooped there today is the gabardine Bush (Bore) coat in gray or tan. A clever sporty-looking jacket with pockets and belt for only $8.50. A very swanky affair. MINE TRAGEDY STUNS VILLAGE

Pennsy Town Counts 8 Dead, 10 Injured as Rescuers Finish Task.

(By Associated Press)

ST. CLAIR, Pa.—This little mining town in the heart of Pennsylvania's anthracite region lay stunned today by the greatest tragedy in its history—a mine explosion that killed eight men and injured 10 others.

Tight-lipped miners stood on street corners with bowed heads as widows and fatherless children arranged funerals for the men killed yesterday in the blast that rocked the St. Clair Coal company's mine. It was the nation's second major mine disaster in less than a week. Nearly half a hundred died in an explosion in a bituminous mine at Grundy, Va., last week.

The injured, burned so badly that physicians said three may die, were unable to tell exactly what happened.

Rescue squads, fighting through "black-damp," came first upon the body of Frank Montgomery, 30, one of the 600 miners working in the mine.

Then they reached the others—some dead, some burned.

The other dead: Paul Sikra, 40; Wasil Holovak, 45; Andrew Potts, 36; Luke Churckran, 40; Richard Barnes, 43, all of St. Clair, and Michael and John Terris, brothers, of Port Clinton.

COUNTY CLAIMS SHOW DECREASE

Despite an increase in industrial accidents in Ohio last month over February, Richland county reported a decline in claims filed and fatalities.

The county had no industrial deaths last month as compared with two in February, while accident claims dropped to 148, the Ohio industrial commission's report showed today.

Two permanent partial disabilities were reported to the commission last month by Richland county workers, and 17 accidents caused over seven days' lost time. There were 19 cases which resulted in seven days or less lost time and 110 were medical only cases. Total time lost was 1,098 days.

There were 102 fatalities in the state, an increase of eight over the preceding month.

SPEED SLAYING TRIAL

Pictures Easy Way to Record Baby's Growth

We remember the cute little things that baby did today, but they soon are forgotten, so why not make a picture record of his early life that can be preserved for years to come.

The chances are that the majority of parents are so busy watching the antics of the little tots that they completely overlook the fact that babies have a habit of growing up before the parents fond eyes without their noticing the change—in size, disposition, looks or actions.

Every parent wants to keep "record" pictures of the baby, to show him when he "grows up," so for the most part make an effort to snap the baby when he is doing something.

In a baby's life there is the first time for everything. There's his first smile, the first time he reaches out his little arms to be taken from his crib; the first time he pulls himself up to the side of a chair and then—his first step. By all means don't fail to get a picture of his first excursion to his "high chair" to join the family for his first meal at the table.

Make it a practice to have your camera loaded at all times and ready for action, and then watch for that snapshot opportunity.

How to Get Baby To Eat Foods He Needs Old Problem

How to get baby to eat the foods he needs for superior growth and nutrition, is the problem faced today by many parents.

Not so many years ago, pediatricians and mothers were most concerned in establishing the answers to "what foods are best for baby." Such rapid strides have been made that all of those answers have already been provided.

Many homes are set in a complete state of revolution when baby's mealtime comes along. Mother sits patiently with a bowl and spoon making up nursery rhymes, and daddy makes funny faces and turns somersaults.

And repeatedly little Junior turns his head away from the prospect of a mouthful, or takes it in his mouth and then forces it out with his tongue, although all this time he's thoroughly enjoying the antics of those who try to "make him eat." All of which, science proves, is all wrong.

There are, of course, many causes of non-hunger, and when a child suddenly acts as though food is distasteful the first step for the parents to make is to check on his physical condition. Oncoming colds or other systemic infections such as abnormal tonsils or adenoids, and stomach disturbances . . . all these cause a lack of desire for food.

However, once the physician eliminates any possibility of lack of health, it is to be considered that the child's diet may be at fault. Too-frequent feeding, like too much of anything, makes the very sight of food unwelcome.

It is very important that children get outdoor play whether they're in the kicking-in-the-carriage stage, toddling in the safety of a playpen, or already at the run-around period. However, this outdoor activity must be balanced with ample sleep and overstimulation or fatigue should be avoided, particularly during the afternoon.

Some people are never satisfied until they find out something that makes them dissatisfied.

Proper Fitting Of Undergarments Vital to Child

For the maximum of comfort and the encouragement of proper habits of health and cleanliness, proper fitting should be one of the principal considerations in the purchase of children's undergarments. Clothing that fit neatly and smoothly last, summer may now bind little bodies and cause considerable discomfort.

Tight armholes, binding leg bands, garments that are too short, or too snug through the body cause skin irritations, improper posture, and frequently are contributing factors in spoiling proper hygiene habits.

Economy is truly a desirable factor, but health and personal appearance should be of first consideration in the selection of undergarments.

Every child's underwear should conform to the shape of the body, and be so cut as to have tension equally distributed at all points of strain. For the chubby child, the new Lastex-back garments are comfortable and "give" with the child's movements in bending, stooping, jumping and reaching.

In buying new underwear look for seams which are elastic stitched, because those allow for free body movement, at the same time retaining original shape. Openings and back plackets should be amply long for convenience, and to help the child manage its clothes without aid when going to the bathroom.

Add to these features a soft fabric which is porous enough to allow for ventilation, and strong enough to stand daily washing, and you have the ideal undergarment. Daily washing is absolutely imperative for personal cleanliness and personal hygiene.

Play Problems Easy to Solve

The child whom others always tease, and who as the result is always crying and sulking and doesn't care to mix with the other children is not at fault—but the innocent victim of conditions of which he himself cannot explain.

The other children who take advantage of him to bring on these tantrums do so not because they are naturally malicious, but because of the subconscious admiration of the good sportsmanship and the resentment of poor sportsmanship.

The small child who shows early signs of "touchiness" and hypersensitiveness should be made to realize that other children's teasing is done in the spirit of play, and that they should join in the game of life by even laughing at himself if necessary, in order to make himself more admired.

HUGE 'HOPPERS FOUND

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(U.P.)—Grasshoppers five inches long and having a wing spread of nine inches are to be found in South America, according to S. W. Frost, Pennsylvania State College entomology professor.

Children Quick To Adopt Parents' Meal Time Habits

Parents are often surprised to learn how many of their apparently unnoticed habits are adopted by their small children, and the parent needs to pay special attention, for that reason, to the example he sets for his child at meal time.

To get the boy or girl started off right, doctors usually suggest a special meal time for the child, who doesn't always feel like eating at the same time or the same foods its parents chooses.

The child's close observance will often lead him to dislike the same foods his parents rejects, and in such cases, physicians say, the child should by no means be urged or coaxed to eat foods that are repulsive to him.

A "nice, big bowl" of food may whet a grownup's appetite, but it looks like so much to the child, that it is often discouraging! Rather than start to attempt eating at all, the first mouthful is refused, and then the "fun" begins!

It is always wisest to put a small amount of food in the child's dish, and then replenish with small amounts as he gets each portion down.

Actually, forcing food on a child develops his resistance to meals more and more, because, as you already know, he wants the attention more than the food. However, a hungry child will eat.

The first few refusals should be completely ignored.
